What's Stirring in the States?

THE OLD LINE STATE Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, Maryland Democrat, has accused the National Rifle Association of making "wild, inaccurate and irresponsible misrepresentation" in its fight against a gun-control bill, which Defense Secretary Robert McNamara is now backing.

Receives grant

THE OLD DOMINION--The city of Richmond, Va., has received a $432,160 grant from the U.S. Labor Department for a program to find jobs for unemployed persons in low income areas.

Job hunt

EMPIRE STATE (of the North)--Mayor Frank A. Sedita of Buffalo, N.Y., is scratching around to try and find jobs for several hundred Negro youths who figured in rioting. The NAACP arranged a meeting between the mayor and the youths.

To settle fuss

THE KEYSTONE STATE--The Mason-Dixon line, which separates Pennsylvania from neighboring Maryland, was established years before the Civil War, according to the National Geographic Society. It was completed in 1767 -- nearly 100 years before the war, to settle a fuss between the Dutch government of Pennsylvania and the Calverts of Maryland.

Beach Attracts Crowds

American flags rippled in the breeze along Atlantic and Pacific Avenues and at thousands of homes in Virginia Beach's suburbs.

Tourists and local persons flocked to the city's miles of beaches, possibly setting records for the Virginia Beach Borough resort area.

Other families went on picnics, went boating and/or fishing, to private parties and other special affairs.

It all was part of July 4, Independence Day, in greater Virginia Beach in this year of 1967.

Job Choices Varied

A recent industrial and business survey of the number of workers needed in Virginia Beach in the future may alter the career choices of some high school students who are not planning to attend college.

About 75 firms, mostly in Virginia Beach, in 18 job classifications were surveyed by W.E. Lobeck, project director of the local vocational-technical high school, being planned for use in late 1969.

Questionnaires were also filled in by approximately 10,000 high school students in grades eight to twelve to compare their career choices with what may be available in 1969 and 1972. Subjects to be taught in the new school will be based on the survey.

CCO to Meet

Problems of city government will be featured at the July meeting of the Council of Civic Organizations of Virginia Beach, July 12, at the Ft. Story Officers Club.

The dinner buffet meeting will cost $3 per person. A social period will be held from 6:45 to 7:30 with dinner at 7:30.

Of the firms surveyed, 16.8 per cent of the jobs available in 1969 probably will be in business and secretarial fields. However, of the students surveyed, 25.6 per cent picked business and secretarial work as their first choice.

Lobeck explained it was not surprising that the industrial survey showed such a high percentage of business and secretarial jobs since, "almost every plumber has a secretary, but not every business office has a plumber."

On the other hand, 13 per cent of the total jobs expected to be available will be in the machine shop field. Only 8 per cent of the students listed machine shop as their first choice.

One job classification not included on the survey will have to be given consideration, Lobeck said. Commercial art was a write-in choice for 75 students. Other fields in which a relatively high number of students were interested are: Auto mechanics and diesel engines, cosmetology and data processing.

E.E. Brickell, supervisor of the vocational project, said a site for the school will be decided this summer. He said an architect probably will be engaged in September.

It Was the First Litter for "Angel."

2nd Precinct Has New Quarters

The 2nd Precinct police force moved into new and considerably roomier headquarters at the old Vepco building at 18th Street and Artic Avenue the first of the week. The Virginia Beach city government leased the building when Vepco moved into a new building on First Colonial Road.

headquarters, the camera will be located in a separate room. The same room will be used for the training purposes in the winter months and for an indoor pistol range.

Off-duty policemen and Navy Shore patrolmen voluntarily worked through last weekend to paint and partition the building, plus move equipment. Considerable work remains and some of it will be let on contract by the city government.

One of the most important features of the building, according to Capt. R.C. Davis, officer in charge of the precinct, is the size. The second precinct had been located on the second floor of the Virginia Beach Borough Fire Station at 30th Street and Artic Avenue.

Capt. Davis pointed out that the public will be separated from the law breakers at the new location.

"In the old headquarters, tourists with complaints or seeking information often had to wait in the same room with drunks," he said.

He estimated that 1,500 to 2,000 persons come in during the summer months to be photographed for civilian employee identification cards. In the new

There also will be a room for juvenile detention and a locked storeroom for riot-control equipment. The Shore patrol will have two rooms, including space for its radiotransmitter.

Prisoners will be brought in to the building from the rear and will not be in the public area at any time. Lock-up cells will be built later. Davis said none of the cell equipment at the fire station can be used because of its age. The new cells will meet all state requirements, he said.

Justice of the Peace offices are planned at the back of the building. Temporarily, the JP's will be located off the front lobby.

The 2nd precinct has 64 men on the roster during the summer and about 42 in the winter, Davis said. In addition, the new building will be used by a traffic detail, and 10 to 15 auxiliary police on weekends.

Ed Herbert of Cheving, Goodwin & Hoggard drew up the renovation plans for the Precinct building.

Bayside Precinct Sets Open House

The public will get a chance to view the city's new police precinct building on Independence Boulevard north of Pembroke on Saturday and Sunday, July 8 and 9.

Open House is planned from 1 to 5 p.m. both dates, after City Manager W. Russell Hatchett and Police Chief James E. Moore dedicate the precinct for the Bayside Borough area at 1 p.m. July 8.

The precinct building, which cost nearly $100,000 will eliminate the past need for policemen to leave the Bayside area to take persons in custody to Princess Anne Court House. In the precinct will be a "24-hour lockup" for temporary custody.

Chief Moore has not yet said when he plans to assign men to the new building, which will house the 3rd Precinct.

Officers will be able to respond faster to various calls in the area generally bounded by Chesapeake Bay on the north, the Western Branch of the Lynnhaven on the east, Virginia

Coming Up

The Tidewater Sports Club has scheduled a gymkhana from 1 p.m. to sunset, weather permitting, on Sunday, July 9, on the back parking lot of the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center.

Registration begins at noon, and the entry fee is $2. The gymkhana is open to the public. Tom Smith of the Tidewater Sports Club will be the judge.

The 12th annual Boardwalk Art Show, featuring a variety of art works by nearly 800 different artists from the United States and foreign countries, will open on Virginia Beach's oceanfront boardwalk July 13 and run for five days.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees, a group with visions of turning this city into the "surfing capital of the Eastern United States," will sponsor a paddle race on surfboards in the boardwalk resort area on Sunday, July 9. It will begin at 2 p.m. at 57th Street and go south along the beach to the Steel Fishing Pier, a spokesman said.

Beach Boulevard on the south, and the Norfolk-Virginia Beach boundary near Norfolk Municipal Airport on the west.

The opening of the precinct building culminates several years of planning, financing and construction by the Virginia Beach city government. Robert Morris & Company is the general contractor, and Cheving, Goodwin & Hoggard are the architects.

Swimmers Narrowly Miss Death

An untold number of persons narrowly escaped death during the July 4 weekend in Virginia Beach when a car crashed into the railing of Lesner Bridge on Shore Drive at Lynnhaven Inlet.

The driver of the car, which almost went off the bridge onto persons on the beach below, was not injured. It was raining at the time late Sunday, and persons on the beach were running to the bridge for shelter.

The front of the car went through the railing, which kept the vehicle from going off the bridge. The accident caused a traffic jam on the crossing for eastbound traffic.

Dogs Are Poisoned

Some persons annoyed by neighborhood dogs apparently took matters into their own hands, according to Supt. Russell Reed of the Virginia Beach Animal Control Bureau.

He said persons recently reported three dog poisonings to police. Owners of two of the animals reported they recovered, but the third did not phone back, Reed said.

All three had been running loose at night in violation of the law, Reed said. The law requires that a responsible person be with a dog which is loose.

There have been no loose dogs reported lately in the poison areas--Woodhurst north of Hilltop and Huntington near Kempsville.

Passing Thought

"It is the quantity of food which regulates the number of the human species."
--Rev. James Townshend

Decision Day for the Democratic primary election in Virginia Beach is less than a week away--July 11.

Both of the main factions, the Administration and United camps, have debated the past, the present and the future; discussed taxes, highway tolls (the money kind), honesty, integrity, good government, education, merger (or non-merger), ideas in general and change which has been going on in new Virginia Beach the last few years.

Presented here are the 19 major candidates, as their names will appear horizontally on the lever-type machines at the polls.

There also will be voting on members of the City Democratic Committee, with voters in each of six boroughs of Virginia Beach selecting their own committee members. There are no committee contests in Pungo Borough, where only Administration candidates filed. (See Page 2 for the committee candidates.)

Kontopanos: Tourism Unharmed by Takeover

Just before a Virginia Beach couple arrived in Greece the Greek Army took over the government of that tourist-oriented nation.

But James G. Kontopanos, a retired restaurateur who operated the Normandy in the oceanfront area here for years, said this week that the Army move "did not hurt tourism" in Greece.

He and his wife, Myrtle, returned to their Pinewood Drive home in late June from a two-month visit to his European homeland between the Ionian and Aegean Seas.

They arrived in Piraeus, port city for Athens, on April 21, the day after the Army coup.

"We had no difficulty at all,"

Kontopanos said. "It was just as peaceful as it could be, and we got through customs in 10 minutes."

"I asked a good many people how they liked the present situation, and the information they gave me is they are much better off now," he added.

Besides spending three weeks at his hometown of Karpentaria, in the mountains about 150 miles northwest of Greece, Kontopanos and his wife toured a number of islands, including Mycos, Santorin, Andros, and Hydra.

Picnic Planned

The Princess Anne Civic League is sponsoring a picnic for Saturday, July 8th at 6:30 p.m. at Little Island Park, Sandbridge, for all plaza residents.

Sun Backgrounder

Oceana Skipper Is Richmonder

The man who is skipper of the Navy's master jet base, which Virginia Beach residents know as NAS Oceana in the eastern part of this city, is a Richmonder and a VMI man.

Capt. Albert Kyle Earnest, USN, who became commanding officer of the base last fall, was born in Richmond, Va., 50 years ago and worked with the Virginia Insurance Rating Bureau for three years while an Army reservist, before he earned a degree at Virginia Military Institute.

World War II broke out shortly after he finished flight training at the Anacostia Naval Reserve Air Base and at NAS Jacksonville, Fla.

Earnest reported to a torpedo squadron in Norfolk in December of 1941, received training in the now-obsolete Avengers torpedo planes and eventually went to Midway Island to help prepare for an expected attack. He was among Navy fliers who figured in a search for a Japanese carrier task force and found it early in 1942, when the Battle of Midway was in the headlines.

The planes (attached to VT-8 Midway) pressed the attack without fighter support, and Capt. Earnest's plane was the only one to return to Midway Island. He had to make a one-wheel landing because his plane was heavily damaged. One gunner was dead and the other wounded.

Capt. Earnest received a purple heart for wounds suffered in the action. He also received the Navy Cross and a Gold Star.

He later flew off the carrier USS Saratoga in support of the initial landing on Guadalcanal and in combat operations in the Solomon Islands before enemy torpedoes damaged the Saratoga in late 1942.

Capt. Earnest

NAS Oceana's present-day skipper collected another decoration, a Gold Star in lieu of the Navy Cross, for torpedo hits on a Japanese cruiser and other ship. He later participated in actions around Kwajalein, Kavieng, Emirau, and Eniwetok while flying with Fleet Composite Squadron 7.

Capt. Earnest near the end of World War II served at the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River, Md., and commanded Attack Squadron 4A at NAS North Island.

He has since attended the Annapolis postgraduate school, the Naval War College, a jet training school in Kansas and the Special Weapons School in Norfolk.

He also has been a project Brickell Speaks officer with the Bureau of Aeronautics, an air operations officer on the carrier USS Ticonderoga, and commander of Attack Task Group 181 at NAS Oceana.

After tours as assistant director of the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent and study at the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, Earnest went to Europe twice in the early 1960's as a representative of Commander Strike Fleet Atlantic and SACLAN, then in Paris.

He also was attack design officer and assistant aircraft development officer in Washington, and he commanded the USS Estes, an amphibious force flagship in the Pacific. It was with the U. S. Seventh Fleet twice while he was skipper.

He and his wife, the former Mildred Emily McConnell of Coronado, Calif., live at the 19th-century Bell House at NAS Oceana. They have two children, Kathryn Lynn, 21, and William Kyle, 18.

Five local students were among 156 students at Randolph-Macon College who were named to the Dean's List and received academic recognition.

They are: Beverly Jean Lowe of East Lynn Shores Circle, James Caton Gray of Toy Avenue; Joseph W. West of Oceana Blvd.; Stephen R. Horman of Dauphin Lane; and Tracy H. Wilder III of Regina Lane.

Temple Emmanuel Sets Schedule

According to Phillip Pincus, Rabbi of Temple Emmanuel, the following will be the synagogue's summer schedule:

Friday evening services at 8:35 p.m., Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m., Sunday morning at 9 a.m., Monday and Thursday mornings at 7:30 p.m.

Services will be held nightly at 7:30 with the exception of Friday.

James P. Landis, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Landis of Alexandria, was awarded a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration from Babson Institute, Wellesley Hills, Mass.

Landis is a graduate of Princess Anne High School.

Two local men were among 75 students in the University of Virginia's School of Architecture who won places on the dean's list for work done in the spring semester.

They are Timothy Barrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Barrow of Blueberry Road and John Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henderson of Wildcat Road.

Miss Carolyn Bosher, a rising senior at Greensboro College, Greensboro, N. C., will travel and study in Europe this summer under the auspices of Piedmont University Center.

A Move to Moderation

The long and hard campaign for Democratic nominations in next Tuesday's July 11 primary election is nearing a close. It has stirred memories, focused attention on the present and awakened many to the bright future of greater Virginia Beach.

What is going on, although unknown to some who still live in the past, is a political reformation which is giving the Democratic party in Virginia Beach a moderate tone. The Administration Team reflects that tone in its makeup. The opposing United Candidates group is more liberal.

While there has been much name-calling, maneuvering for favorable position and shaking of family trees, candidates on both sides have expressed interest in good government, honest government and efficient government. No one can quarrel with those aims.

By now most Virginia Beach voters have made up their minds on who or what they will vote for or against on July 11. And at this stage, the main issue is whether it is time for a change in political leadership.

City Treasurer V. Alfred Etheridge, cast in the role of leading "the loyal opposition," a position local Republicans want to assume, has talked long of the past—as far back as the 1930's.

Mr. Sidney S. Kellam, Democratic national committeeman for Virginia and chief backer of the Administration Team (part of what we knew as the "Organization" in the past), has spoken of and worked more for the future.

S. Paul Brown

The death this week of S. Paul Brown, vice-mayor of Virginia Beach, is a loss to the entire city as well as Princess Anne Borough, which he primarily served before Princess Anne County joined with Virginia Beach in 1963.

Mr. Brown's strong convictions, insistence on honesty and fairness in government and "common sense" approach to government earned him much respect from his friends and colleagues, and from both his rural and urban constituents.

While his concern was primarily with rural problems for many years, he took the time to learn of needs in other areas of greater Virginia Beach and do his part to solve them.

His passing was not entirely unexpected because he had been in poor health for some time. Our sympathies are with his family, and they can be assured S. Paul Brown will be remembered for the part he played in the city's growth.

Striking a Balance

The debate about "free speech" and "dissent" continues to draw the attention of TV commentators and analysts, as views on what those phrases mean range from the ridiculous to the reasonable. Anyone has a right to differ and sound off.

But, we kind of like the levellers U. S. Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington State offered last weekend. As we recall, he mentioned restraint and responsibility on the other side of the "free speech" and "dissent" coin.

That's a flippin' good point from a non-Stonewall Jackson.

While much of the opposition campaign fire has been directed at him in recent days, and the Administration's Howard E. Merrill has continued bearing down on Mr. Etheridge, a precinct-level fight for control of the City Democratic Committee has moved quietly along.

Anyone who leaves their provincial cocoon long enough to learn what is happening in greater Virginia Beach, can see change has been constant and restrained under the present political leadership for quite a few years.

Highways and public utilities programs, on which any city must build, are appearing as a result of basic planning done years ago through the cooperation of officials at City Hall and others. New municipal buildings, such as libraries and courts buildings are appearing. A computer installed last year by the city administration is assuming new tasks.

Those are only a few of the changes. Public schools are improving, the city is gaining more commerce to balance its tax base and hold taxes low, light industry has been acquired and chances are improving for getting larger sophisticated industries. Unemployment is the lowest in this metropolitan area.

A sizable number of military families in our city has brought the present world conflicts closer to home. And those same families—many now settled here—have contributed to our city in the way of new ideas from other states and regions.

Provincialism has long been dead in Virginia Beach. And in the July 11 primary election, we prefer the more forward-looking Administration Team to carry the Democratic banner.

To make it clear, this includes Kellam, Burlage, and Whitehurst for the state legislative posts and Fentress, Mapp, Merrill, Pickett and Sutton for the state-city constitutional positions at City Hall.

As a group, those candidates reflect a broad range of ages, philosophies, religions, interests, backgrounds and abilities. And they favor putting greater Virginia Beach first, with due regard for cooperation with our neighboring cities and the state and federal governments when it is proper and feasible.

Particularly on problems of air pollution, broader education, mass transportation, municipal-state financing and other regional problems which must be tackled now to make the future safer and more orderly.

Letters to the Editor

In Favor of Force

Dear Editor:

I read where three Virginia Beach police officers were hurt during the time they were making an arrest. Feloniously assaulted, beat right down to the ground. Why?

Why do the police not use the statutes that give them the right to protect themselves and property of citizens, including themselves?

"The necessary force" is the way I think the laws read. These men know the limits of necessary force, but why do they not use it?

They, by law, can use as much force as they deem necessary to make an arrest. The individual police officer must be the one who decides when necessary force stops.

It may be as simple as saying "you are under arrest," or it could be as serious as the cases of officers who almost lost their lives, like one in Norfolk being stabbed with a screwdriver several times and having to use his pistol.

There are many examples in the files in the cities of Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Chesapeake, and every city in the country. I guess there are many reasons why these underpaid servants of ours use the minimum amount of force in making an arrest and consequently get into trouble.

But why the minimum? They are certainly not afraid for themselves. They could be afraid for their family, their job, or maybe a political trap of some sort.

How many times a year in cities is a person arrested, and he mentions the police chief's first name and tells the officer he will have his job before it is time to go to court? This happens often, but I've never known it to actually materialize.

The oldtimers in police work often pass out good advice, and the most valuable I ever received I would like to pass on—look for the unexpected and your chances of getting hurt are at a minimum.

Campaign Moves to TV As New Charges Arise

While eyes in Washington and elsewhere were on the July 11 Democratic primary in Virginia Beach last week, Sidney S. Kellam (on whom the eyes were centered) went on the peacock TV station (Channel 10) to fire some campaign rounds.

The TV program ran short, however, and missed some of the Democratic national committeeman's comments.

Political Potpourri

Referring to Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin's earlier proposal that Virginia Beach consider merger, Kellam said: "Big fish have been eating little fish since the beginning of time."

He also said a payroll tax, proposed by some in Norfolk, "would ruin us," and he accused the United Candidates of downgrading Virginia Beach.

Meanwhile, the week brought these other campaign developments:

Joseph A. Gawrys of the United said his state legislative ticket will help the mentally handicapped by supporting a 500-bed regional center being planned by the state administration. Virginia Beach City Council previously supported the plan when Dr. Ira L. Hancock outlined it.

L. Charles Burlage, on the Administration's state legislative ticket with State Sen. William P. Kellam and Kenneth Whitehurst Jr., proposed the establishment of a Virginia Beach Port Authority.

Burlage said its objective would be the eventual creation of a deep-water port facility for cargo ships in the Little Creek area, and the Administration

Team will work for the necessary legislation in the General Assembly.

Del. Willard Moody of Portsmouth made another foray into Virginia Beach, and as of Sun presstime had endorsed neither Caton nor Kellam in the local fight for the state senate nomination. Caton and Kellam have both been saying nice things about Moody.

William H. Phillips, opposing the Administration's Ivan D. Mapp for revenue commissioner, alleged Mapp had made an improper tax assessment on a trailer court owned by Albert L. Bonney Jr.

Mapp said the charge was "absolutely false," because he had not assessed the trailer court. The State Department of Taxation assessed property in what is now Virginia Beach in 1961-62, before the trailer park was developed and the city set trailer-lot fees for tax purposes.

Sun Report

May Business Up Says W & M Index

This week's Sun Report is a report on a report—the monthly Virginia Business Index Report published by the Bureau of Business Research at the College of William and Mary. Gilbert C. Jones is the director.

Here is the latest, for the month of May, as it was published:

May 1967 in comparison to May 1966 can be classified as a good month for business in Virginia.

Retail sales were up 3.7 per cent in the May 1967 to May 1966 comparison. This comparison is a very valid one for the following reasons: In both years the month had four Saturdays. In both years the temperatures were unseasonably low for the month. In both years Memorial Day was observed in a variety of ways from increased promotions to stores that might be closed. However, to complete the comparison for retail sales it is necessary to note that the gain recorded for May over the same period in 1966 fell short of the seven per cent gain recorded for the nation as reported by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Car Registrations Up

New Car Registration in May posted the first gain experienced this year by the indicator—up 21 per cent. However, this gain was not enough to put this indicator ahead in the cumulative 1967 to 1966 comparison, 1967 to date, finds new car registrations down from the same period in 1966 by approximately 17 per cent and all cities covered by the index are off in this cumulative comparison.

Building permits for the month of May were up approximately 13 per cent in the State average but many of the major cities in the State posted minus figures and some cities, for the month, are below the figures for the same month in the base year. For 1967 to date, building permits are down approximately 8 per cent from 1966. Through May, the availability and cost of mortgage money continued to improve. However, in June the cost of long term funds in the New York money market began to rise again which may bode ill for the future availability and cost of mortgage money.

The Outlook

Two factors of immediate importance—both negative, which confront the business community are the plan to raise the federal income tax and the threat of strikes particularly in the auto industry. The consumer's reaction to the former will be an important element in determining the future prospects for the remainder of the year especially for consumer durable goods. The strikes can only reduce further the over-all growth experienced by the national economy so far in 1967.

Building For June Leads '66

Housing construction continued on an upward trend in greater Virginia Beach during June, according to building-permit records at City Hall.

The city government issued permits for 165 single-family houses valued at $3.05 million during June, compared with 104 permits valued at $2.01 million in the same month of 1966.

Rob Lohr, assistant to Building Official John Gibbs, said there were no permits in June of this year and last year for apartments or duplexes.

Cumulative totals for the year in Virginia Beach through June are 1,235 permits in all building categories and values of $17.9 million, compared with 1,284 permits and $21.6 million in values by the same time last year.

Construction this year got off to a slow start, but has picked up in recent months in comparison with 1966.

Loan Association Reports Assets

The Norfolk Industrial Loan Association, headed by Donald V. Burlage, reported consolidated assets of $3,253,831 as of Dec. 31, 1966, for the association and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Small Business Investment Corporation of Norfolk.

Burlage said the net represented a 6 per cent increase over the same period in 1965. He reported net income for 1966 at $20,873.65.

Local Fahnstock & Co. Branch Features Modern Equipment

A Lectrascan ticker-tape board tied to the New York and American stock exchanges, and the Dow Jones Business and Financial News Service are among features of a Fahnstock & Co. branch now open in the resort area of greater Virginia Beach.

Willard R. Ashburn Jr., branch manager for the New York-based financial firm established in 1881, announced the branch opening this week. It is in the Virginia House at 39th Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The move came shortly after Income Planning Corporation, an investment firm with a branch previously located at Princess Anne Plaza, opened its office at Virginia Beach's Pembroke Mall, about eight miles west of the city's oceanfront. Adm. John B. McLean (Ret.) is resident vice-president there.

Fahnstock & Co. has foreign offices in Hong Kong, London, Paris, Monte Carlo, Munich and in various South American countries. There also are branches in Chicago, Philadelphia, New York, and other American cities.

Ashburn said a senior partner in the firm is M. Donald Grant, chairman of the board of the New York Mets baseball team. The Virginia Beach branch is the first venture by Fahnstock

Ashburn is a former manager of the local branch of Anderson & Strudwick on Pacific Avenue and recently left that Richmond-based firm.

With him at the Fahnstock branch are his wife, Pat, and Mrs. Mary English and Wilbur Snow.

B. Withers Sr.

B. Withers Jr.

The new partnership is in business at 958 Laskin Road, where the senior Withers' business was located.

New Motel To Be Built By Spring

Robert L. Mott, president of Mott Construction Co., said a 120-unit motel costing $750,000 will be completed by next spring at the corner of Northampton Boulevard and Diamond Springs Road in greater Virginia Beach.

It will be the third Holiday Inn motel in the city, and will have a restaurant and meeting room for 250 persons.

The Virginia Beach Industrial Authority was active in helping Mott work out arrangements for the motel, Mott said construction will begin early this month.

Check Buyer's Credit Advises VA Official

Any veteran desiring to be released from all liability on his GI loan should first find a purchaser who appears to be a good credit risk and who is agreeable to assuming liability, according to Maurice Hunger, Veterans' Claims Agent.

A veteran would be wise to see that the sales agreement included the provision that if the purchaser was not acceptable to the Veterans Administration, then the transaction is invalid. The period of time that is normally required for action to be contemplated by the Veterans Administration is somewhere near four weeks. This period of time would naturally depend upon the work load in the particular Veterans Administration Office, and could easily vary somewhat.

The increasing number of veterans who have found themselves indebted to the government on a home which they sold years before has, in part, been responsible for the interest shown on this particular subject recently.

Hunger, visits the Alan B. Shepard Convention Center, 19th Street and Pacific Avenue, on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month, between the hours of 12:30 and 4 p.m.

On The Rise

In Professional And Business Circles

Turkey Is Plentiful

The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Commerce is talking plenty of turkey these days.

From that department's Richmond office comes a report that puts turkey at the top of the plentiful foods list for July, with the prediction of still more to come. Expect to see turkeys featured at even lower prices than at present, reports their marketing news specialist. As of May 1, in cold storage were 82 million pounds over that of a year ago.

The department reports also that prospects for a favorable vegetable season in Virginia have improved with the recent rains and warm temperatures. A greater variety of colorful vegetables will be arriving this month: crisp vegetables to eat raw or cooked.

firm for use in salads or sandwiches and will retain their garden-fresh flavor.

The process was developed and put into use by a well-known name. It took five years to develop and the specified quantities of tomatoes needed for this new method. They are grown on the West Coast, packed in 141/2-ounce containers and are expected to retail for about 33 cents.

The Fans and Umps at Trant

While the boys in the Lynn-haven Pony and Colt leagues play a top brand of baseball for their ages--13 through 16, there are fans, umpires, coaches and refreshments that go with a baseball game, too.

Driving Tips Offered To Public

Motorists in this area are being urged to follow four driving tips to make their vacations safer and more pleasant.

J. Roy Alphin, a Virginia man on the Auto Dealers Traffic Safety Council, said vacationing motorists should have their car safety-checked, should lock all doors from the outside when they park, from the inside before they drive and buckle their safety belts before starting the car, and stay alert and take frequent rest breaks on long trips.

Alphin, who heads Alphin, Motors, Inc., said that for around-town driving the safety council says: "Lock up when you get in, lock up when you get out, and buckle up in between" to get the safety habit.

4-H Girl Wins Trip

Miss Mary Bungard, a local 4-H clubber, has won a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress to be held in Chicago in November. Miss Bungard was chosen on the basis of her outstanding leadership.

Miss Ruth Anne Oliver's records will also be sent to the convention to be judged in national competition.

Va. Driving Up 6.2% In 1966

Motor vehicles traveled an average of more than 29 million miles a day on Virginia's interstate, arterial and rural primary roads in 1966, the State Highway Department said recently.

The daily average--29,357,131 miles--represented an increase of 6.2 per cent over the previous year.

Local Legion Teams To Play Pittsburgh Team at Cox High School July 8 and 9

Two local American Legion baseball teams sponsored by Post 113 will play a team from Pittsburgh at Cox High School on this Saturday and Sunday, July 8 and 9.

Princess Anne 113, has been leading the American Legion circuit recently while Virginia Beach 113 has been third place.

Special Mention

Jordan Ball

.....Local golfer who planned to defend his Virginia Beach Amateur title in play at Kempsville Meadows Golf Course late this week, July 7-9. Andy Mosley, who won the 1965 title, also was scheduled to make the short trip to the tournament from NAS Oceana.

Ted Torok

.....A Neptune football lineman who ran into trouble when he opened a teen-age dance spot on the oceanfront, then finally got a temporary city permit after a fuss with some neighbors.

Skip Wilkins

.....The Princess Anne High athlete, who received a broken neck while water skiing last month, is recuperating at Norfolk General Hospital.

Raceway Closes Until July 15

The Suffolk Raceway will be closed until the night of Saturday, July 15, for the installation of a lighting plant to permit Saturday night racing throughout the summer months.

The American Legion team sponsored by Post 862 in Pittsburgh is made up of players from Montour High School in Robinson Township, Pa., which played in the East-West Regional Playoff this past spring.

Barton Gets Ranger Job

James P. Barton, Jr. has begun duties as a chief ranger at Seashore State Park.

Barton, a former patrolman with the Virginia Beach police department, shares responsibilities with C. F. Woodlin, Jr., who has been chief ranger since last June. They will work under the supervision of John C. Killinger, park superintendent.

A former Virginia Beach resident, Allan F. Cope, became chief ranger in June at Douthat State Park near Clifton Forge. He also was a Virginia Beach police patrolman.

Princess Anne 113, coached by Bob Graeff, will play at 8 p.m. Saturday, Virginia Beach 113, coached by Norman Field, will play at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Sun Review StageDoor Has Food, Fair Play

Tidewater's newest dinner playhouse is open, and if enthusiasm of the audience means anything, the reception is more than welcome. The Stage Door Dinner Playhouse is beautifully appointed, and a far cry from the old Gilded Cage Club that it now occupies. The service is excellent and the food is outstanding. It is worth just seeing the theatre-dining room and being treated to a delightful evening.

The presentation of Muriel Resnik's weak bedroom comedy, "Any Wednesday," as an opening production was perhaps not as good as we can expect in the future, but the production had its moments and was enjoyed by the audience.

The play is one of the latest in the long line of sex comedies that don't have very much today. It has some very funny lines in the general course of action, but most of the funniest lines are dropped in, almost completely out of context.

The story concerns a business tycoon who has bought his young girlfriend's co-op apartment as his company's "executive suite", thus making it tax deductible. He visits the suite every Wednesday night on the pretext of being out of town. This arrangement works beautifully until his new secretary sends a young business associate and his wife to see him while he is "working" at the executive suite. When all four get together for a delightful evening, the audience is treated to the same.

Unfortunately, in the Stage Door production, Peggy Boykin is badly miscast as the "kept" tax deductible woman. Although she keeps the pace moving well, she does not look the part and the costuming does not help. Her superficial performance is almost entirely wrapped up in sticking her lip out and batting her big brown eyes in an effort to pout. This in itself is not too hard to take until her too large and laughable reactions to some situations detract from the production.

Phil Uhler turns in a nice performance as the tycoon, although his obvious "punching" of built-in laugh lines is to be questioned, especially in the playing of a word game in the second act.

Carol Fox has some excellent moments as the tycoon's wife. Her facial expressions, added to her cultured voice, give real body to a nice characterization of the stuffy wife.

But the real joy in the evening is the role of the young business executive played by Andy Roberts. His is by far the most convincing characterization, and the warmth he gives the role is a joy to watch.

The set seems only fair, being one-dimensional and looking not finished. The overall production we saw lacked pacing, which would appear to be the fault of the director Jon Dawson. Although he has put together an unusual and different interpretation of the play, the broadness and overplay is to be questioned.

The Stage Door, regardless of minor shortcomings in this, its first production, promises to be a welcome addition to the Tidewater theatrical scene.

The Fun Things

A young Modern Millie...hand in hand with a young way of living.

The Modern Millie...Laura Jeanne Lambe...doing what she set out to do when she graduated from Country Day School...seeing the world...getting to know its inhabitants...sampling what it has to offer.

En route to Europe to "live as long as she feels like it"...a stop-over here for a brief visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lambe of Birdneck Point...long enough for inoculations...for a toe in the surf...for a modeling session with Dick Dyer of Boice Studios.

She plans to be everywhere and do everything...before she "settles" if she ever does.

Since graduation from Country Day, she's "done" California...sampled its education...worked in its shops...dabbled in its art.

So now it's Europe...to explore the ancient cities...to witness first hand its Now Happenings.

For an active, young Modern Millie...the Fun Things...easy, colorful, vibrant...as vibrant almost as the Young Millies themselves.

These...from Plaza Rice's, from Pembroke's Kanter's, from Lynnhaven's Rose Hall.

Lady On The Beach

By Carolyn McAllen
Sun Staff Writer

We thought the Marines were always ready for action.

But the problem of what to do with a female-type reporter during a mock invasion of the beach was almost too much for visiting Reservists. A solution finally was reached after a bit of buck-passing and a few hasty consultations.

Friday was graduation day for 1,000 Marine reserves who underwent two weeks of amphibious training at Camp Pendleton and Little Creek Amphibious Base. The boss said cover the assault from a woman's point of view. So...

The press had an official invitation. I guess they never believed a woman could get there by 8:30 a.m. A security guard first directed me to the reviewing stand where the Public Information officer was supposed to be. He wasn't. In fact nobody had seen him since breakfast.

Meanwhile the Marines in the reviewing stand were trying to decide where to send me next. An unsuspecting colonel looked (See 31st and Pacific Page 3B)

PEACH PIZZAZZ

If fresh peaches were available throughout the year rather than only in the summer months, we're told Americans probably would eat around 5 billion pounds in fresh form instead of the 1.6 million pounds we now consume in four months.

The luscious flesh of a fresh ripe peach is generous in vitamin A content. Two medium-size peaches provide about half the recommended daily allowances. They also provide vitamin C as well as other vitamins and minerals. Weight watchers are always delighted to learn that a whole medium fresh peach, for all its delightful flavor, provides no more than a slim 35 calories.

When shopping for peaches, remember that good quality fruit is bright and fresh in its appeal. Look for a yellowish or creamy background color in addition to rosy cheeks. Peaches must be picked in a mature-firm stage for long distance shipment, so, if necessary, allow a day or two at room temperature to develop juiciness.

Home economists of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association suggest these excellent ways of serving peaches.

Fresh peach ice cream (freezer type), served with fresh strawberry sauce and topped with sliced fresh peaches.

Peach Ice Cream Sundae

- 1 1/3 cups sugar
- 2 T. flour
- 1/8 tsp salt
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 2 cups crushed fresh peaches
- 1/2 tsp. almond extract
- 2 tsp. vanilla extract
- 2 cups heavy cream, whipped
- Sliced fresh peaches
- Fresh Strawberry Sauce

Combine 1 cup of the sugar, flour and salt in saucepan. Blend in eggs and 1/4 cup of the milk. Add remaining 1 1/4 cups of the milk and cook over LOW heat until mixture coats metal spoon, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and chill.

Combine peaches with remaining 1/3 cup sugar and almond extract. Stir peaches into custard mixture and add vanilla extract and whipped cream. Turn into freezing trays. Place in freezer until frozen, stirring once during freezing period. Serve scoops of ice cream in sherbet glasses with sliced peaches; pour over Strawberry Sauce.

- 1 cup strawberry puree (from 1 pint strawberries)
- 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup sugar
- 2 T. cornstarch
- 2 T. cold water

Combine all ingredients in small saucepan. Heat to boiling, stirring until thick and smooth. Cool. Serve over peach ice cream. Serves 8 to 10.

Peach Biscuit Tortoni

- 3/4 cup (7) crushed almond macaroon cookies
- 1/4 cup toasted unsalted almonds
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 2 tsp. vanilla extract
- 2 fresh peaches, pureed
- Sliced fresh peaches for garnish

Toast macaroons in preheated slow oven (300 degrees) 18 to 20 minutes. Cool, then crush in blender. Remove macaroon crumbs. Chop almonds in blender; reserve. Combine macaroon crumbs, milk, sugar and salt in small bowl. Let stand 1 hour. Fold in whipped cream, vanilla extract and peach puree.

Place cup cake liners (no. 10) in cup cake pans and spoon in mixture, filling 3/4 cup full. Freeze until firm and ready to serve. Garnish each with reserved chopped almonds and sliced peaches. Yield: 1 dozen.

Fresh Peach Crunch

- 1 cup uncooked rolled oats
- 3/4 cup dark brown sugar
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. ground cinnamon
- 1/8 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine
- 2 medium-sized peaches, peeled and sliced.

Blend oats, sugar, flour, cinnamon, salt and butter. Arrange peaches in 9-inch pie plate or 8 x 8 x 2-inch square baking dish. Sprinkle with oat mixture. Bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 35 minutes. Serve warm with whipped cream, if desired. Enough for 4.

Fentress, Hopper Vows Said

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dodd McHugh announce the marriage of his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McHugh Fentress, to Samuel Ner Hopper. The ceremony took place June 19 in Elizabeth City, N. C.

Mrs. Hopper is a niece of the late Cmdr. Henry Thomas Baker and Mrs. Baker of Norfolk.

Mr. Hopper is the son of Mrs. Ann Hopper of Virginia Beach and the late Dr. Arthur West Hopper.

Their Season's Over

Harold Whitehurst, director of the Parks and Recreation Departments, spoke to members of The Woman's Democratic Club of Virginia Beach-Princess Anne County at their final meeting of the season held recently in the Ocean Hearth Restaurant.

Whitehurst's topic, As the Land Shrinks, So Does the Soul, was a discussion of the Commission's accomplishments and future plans. He illustrated his talk with maps and pictures.

Whitehurst said, "We of the Commission consider our job a sacred one, since, as residents of the sixth largest city (in acreage) in the nation, we are given the trust of stewardship of our present lands and of the acquisition of new ones."

Some 100 members attended. Mrs. Francis Geiger, president, thanked everyone for their help in organizing the live donkey cart and presidents' car for the recent Armed Forces Day parade.

Area Clubs

Court Stella Maris #1881, Catholic Daughters of America, at its June meeting, installed a new slate of officers for the coming club year.

Mrs. Henry T. Brawley was installed Grand Regent. Serving with her will be Mrs. Richard Hitcher, vice Grand Regent; Mrs. Homer Leedom, prophetess; Mrs. Arthur Pearson, financial secretary; Mrs. John F. McIntyre, treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Mowbray, historian.

Serving as trustees for the next three years will be Mrs. Charles D. Warren and Mrs. James Shank; for two years, Mrs. Ruth Mangas and Mrs. Thomas Murphy; for one year, Mrs. Roger Massey and Mrs. Alfred Goodwin.

The new officers were installed by Mrs. Vincent Pessella, district deputy. Mrs. Arthur R. Gallagher, vice state regent, represented the Virginia State Court. Present also was the Rev. John J. Foley of Star of the Sea Catholic Church, the local court chaplain.

A Confident Lynn Eyes Virginia Crown

Lynn Prangley...a college woman...beauty contestant...a Miss Virginia Beach...jumping for a crack at the Miss Virginia title to be bestowed on a young hopeful July 15 in Roanoke.

Our Miss Virginia Beach is a strong contender for the crown.

She'll leave the early part of next week with Janet Fishel, traditional go-along whose past few years' experience as an on-the-scene bystander at the Miss Virginia pageant leads her to believe that we have a winner.

If she wins, Lynn will get about $1,000 with the possibility of making three times that much during her reign. She'll also acquire a wardrobe to see her through the Miss America pageant as Virginia's representative.

The wardrobe that will take her through the upcoming eventful four days in Roanoke is her own. Virginia Beach's contestant is expected to provide her own clothes. She must either have funds to splurge or the know-how to sew.

Lynn's sewing ability is limited.

Jaycees Eye Another

Virginia Beach Jaycees are girl-watching.

They're seeking contestants for the Miss Virginia Beach crown which will be up for grabs beginning tomorrow night, July 7.

Contestants need only be single, between 18 and 28, and a resident of Virginia Beach. Anyone interested is asked to contact entries chairman James D. Hill at the Pembroke Mall branch of the Temple of Music, Music.

The first eliminations will be held tomorrow evening at Virginia Biggs Dancing Academy at Princess Anne Plaza. A panel of five judges will interview all candidates for a period of three minutes. After the interviews, each girl will demonstrate her skill at person runway presentation and a portion of her talent routine. Fifteen finalists then will be selected for the pageant which will be held, Friday, Aug. 4, in the Virginia Beach Civic Center.

There is no entry fee.

For the eliminations, a suitable outfit for the talent routine is required. For the finals, an evening gown, swim suit and a costume will be needed. Professional training will be provided for all finalists by Mrs. Biggs and by the John Robert Powers Fashion and Finishing School.

make-up and can't be bothered teasing her hair. Most of the time she wears it upswep, wrapped with a braided hair piece. It's medium long, and tends to curl, and as most girls with curly hair know, in damp weather this can be tragic. So she'll wear it plainly-styled for the pageant.

In addition to her natural good looks, she has eyes that twinkle, a quick smile, and an abundance of talent.

Mrs. Fishel says her talent is so good it's "almost frightening."

She'll do a musical presentation in which she'll sing and dance...selections from Funny Girl, Auntie Mame and Sound of Music...a presentation those who've seen feel will put Lynn in the finals.

She's just completed her freshman year at the University of Colorado. During this year, Lynn feels, she grew up.

"On campus, the school authorities don't feel they're babysitters. If there were things that shocked me, the school knew they were going on, but their attitude is that they're educators and students must be ready to face these things by the time they're in college."

"Our mobile society...a society made up of young people who can go anywhere...do anything...causes me some concern."

Right now, though, the concern doesn't show. She's back home...a delightfully nervous young woman making preparations for her first really big test.

Golden Agers

Thirty members of the Golden Years Club of Virginia Beach visited Mrs. Christine Murden at her summer home on Knotts Island, N.C. After a luncheon, male members of the club fished; the women toured the island. It was the club's final meeting of the year.

Council Attends Service

Star of the Sea Catholic Church Advisory Council was among similar groups throughout the state who attended a special evening Mass last week in Richmond Cathedral. Bishop John J. Russell officiated. Council members who made the trip, accompanied by the Rev. Francis Bambrick (right), pastor of Star of the Sea, were (from left) William R. Bridgeford, Thomas Shoemaker, John P. Keary and Mrs. Joseph Barraco. The Mass marked the official opening of the Year of Faith proclaimed by Pope Paul VI to commemorate the 1900th anniversary of the martyrdom of Sts. Peter and Paul.

like the answer--besides he was half a mile away from the reviewing stand.

So--he located a lieutenant, who then located a major. Fine. He was the missing information officer. The only information he didn't have was what to do with me.

After concluding that the top of the sand dunes on the beach front was not the place for me to observe the action (maybe the skirts would have been a little distracting in the midst of battle?), I was sent back to the bench--the bleachers that is.

The seat was good, but the heavy equipment the lieutenant promised would come ashore right beside me from the ships never appeared. But I certainly never lacked for attention. The lieutenant was assigned to answer my questions. With my basic lack of knowledge concerning amphibious attacks, there was plenty.

Still I couldn't help envying my fellow (male) reporters standing atop the dunes during the invasion. One went so far as to come prepared with combat boots. Next time I'll wear slacks. At least I didn't have as much sand to pour out of my shoes as I'm sure they did.

I'll admit, however, that I was glad to be closer to the cold drink stands, the rest rooms, and other comforts of home. The many mothers with small children were even happier with the handy facilities.

Women screamed at the first burst of shells on the beach. Most of the children didn't even flinch (nobody cried) just pointed excitedly and yelled, "Look, look!"

Calm throughout was a WAVE at the first aid station who stood combing her hair as Marines came running up the beach all around her.

It was all over in an hour. Then it rained. And I was still waiting for the equipment to come across the pontoon bridge.

But I'm still wondering where the five Marines in a Jeep got the bags of potato chips they were eating in the middle of the assault.

Car Costs Analyzed

The average motorist in America spends 11 cents a mile to own and operate a car, according to an analysis from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The cost presumably is less in most of new Virginia Beach because the national average included parking charges and garage fees and is based on a family car in Baltimore, Md.

The analysis report said bad driving habits, tire-screwing stops and starts and other factors also affect the cost. The cost of automobile insurance was 1.4 cents of the 11-cent cost.

The King's Grant Christian Day School is planning to move to Virginia Beach.

and it will be moving to the 5400 block of Virginia Beach Blvd. near Davis Corner.

Due to a delay in procuring a building permit, the school will not open until February or September of 1968. The school will accommodate 300 children from kindergarten to ninth grade with 12 teachers.

For further information, con-

Union May Meet At Beach

Virginia Beach city officials may know by next month whether a national labor convention will come here in the early summer of 1971.

Sam Scott, convention sales director for Shepard Civic Center in the boardwalk resort area of greater Virginia Beach, said Miami and the Tulsa, Okla. area also are seeking the convention of the Brotherhood of Railway & Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express & Station Employees of the AF of L-CIO.

Scott, a different Sam Scott from the one on WVAB Radio, said L. L. Owens of Shamrock Avenue in Lakeview Park here is helping the city try and get the convention. He is a Norfolk & Western Railway employee.

George M. Gibbons, general secretary-treasurer from the union's office in Cincinnati, Ohio, was expected to look over Virginia Beach this week, Scott said.

Naval Station Observes 50th

The Norfolk Naval Station is celebrating its 50th Anniversary, and events through the month of July range from the gala opening held July 4th to Open House programs on Saturday, July 15, and then on Saturday and Sunday, July 29 and 30.

The plaques of various aviation units are on display at LF-35, the station's rework paint facility. Those of surface ships and stations based in this area are displayed at the Naval Station Gymnasium.

Rear Adm. Reynolds D. Hogle, Fifth Naval District Commandant, considers each plaque symbolic of the command it represents and illustrates the role of that command.

Methodists Assign New Local Ministers

By Susan Axelrod

Four local Methodist churches have recently received new ministers.

They are: Community Methodist Church on Kempville Road, Foundry Methodist Church on Virginia Beach Boulevard, St. Andrews Methodist Church in Kempville, and Lynnhaven Methodist Church on Little Neck Road.

The Rev. J. W. Morrison comes to Community Methodist Church from St. Paul Methodist Church in Woodbridge, Va. Rev. Morrison was graduated from Randolph-Macon College and Union Theology Seminary. He has also served as pastor of Charity Methodist Church, Back Bay, and Hinton Avenue Church in Charlottesville.

Rev. Morrison is married and has four children. His only son is minister of First Methodist Church in Charlottesville.

Foundry Methodist has the Rev. William N. Colton as its new minister. Rev. Colton is a graduate of Yale University and the Duke Divinity School. He comes to Foundry from Providence Methodist Church in York County. Rev. Colton is married and has two children.

Now at St. Andrews Church after serving as pastor in Portlock, Va., is the Rev. M. L. Yappes. Rev. Yappes received his B. D. (bachelor of divinity) degree at Emory University. He has also been pastor at churches in Churchville and Keyville and was director of the Wesley Student Foundation at Lexington, Va., for four years. He is married and has two daughters, 11 and 8.

The Rev. Mildred V. Long is the new pastor of Lynnhaven Methodist Church. Rev. Long is a graduate of Columbia Bible College and Lynchburg College.

Hog raisers in rural areas of Virginia Beach and other parts of Virginia are being cautioned about using "porcine origin Modified Live Vaccine (MLV)" improperly.

Dr. W. L. Bendix, state veterinarian, said cases of hog cholera recently reported here and in Prince George, Northumberland, and Rockingham counties have been traced to use of the porcine origin MLV.

He said anti-hog cholera serum should be administered with any MLV-type vaccines, but this is not being done by some hog growers.

He also said it was determined last year that the "porcine origin vaccine was not safe," and a license was withdrawn. However some of the vaccine apparently is still being used, he said.

Dictionary Is a Must For Beach Girl in Peru

By Chet Paschang

Kathy Wright is a girl who right now couldn't do without a dictionary.

She is spending three months in Lima, Peru, and wrote to the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN to give readers her impressions of life as an exchange student in South America.

"In my 'family' here, there are two boys and one girl besides my 'parents'. The mother speaks no English at all, the father very little and kids speak almost enough to carry on a conversation, but not quite," Kathy wrote of her hosts, the Machiavello family.

"I carry a dictionary everywhere with me, even at home. We speak a confused version of mixed Spanish and English. You'd be surprised at how fast you can learn things when you have to know them."

Kathy's regular parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Wright of Overholt Drive in greater Virginia Beach. She is a rising senior at Princess Anne High, and two of her classmates, Lem Marshall and Bob Woolridge, also arrived in South America in late June for three-month stays.

When Kathy arrived in Lima by plane, she said she was somewhat air sick, "but I got over that pretty quickly, and now I really like it here," she wrote.

She said she considers her first two weeks in Lima "an adjustment period."

"It's really hard to switch from a sandwich to a full-course meal," she wrote, after explaining about hot milk "which I have never had before and is really not bad," fresh orange juice and bread for breakfast; salad, soup, meat, and usually rice for lunch; tea, coffee, and bread at "tea," and a "large supper."

Kathy learned there are two St. George schools in Lima because she first went to one and found out it was the wrong one. But the director of the "wrong San Jorge" wanted to admit her "because of her love for Kennedy," the late president.

"Right now in Lima, it is winter," Kathy wrote. "The sun very seldom shines, maybe one day in a week. It is usually very overcast, but it doesn't rain. If there is precipitation it is a kind of misty stuff that engulfs you.

"In this way, it rains but it doesn't rain. The only thing you could compare it to would be a very bad fog, without the vision factor. It's strange!"

An 18-year-old girl in the Machiavello family has a 21-year-old boy friend, whom Kathy identified only as Pepe. "He goes to the university here," Kathy wrote. "This January he is going to the United States to visit some schools. He's studying to become an engineer."

"This is a wonderful place with wonderful people. All the cousins and aunts and friends want to introduce you to all the English-speaking people they can find.

"The biggest problem is homesickness, of course.... I still count the days until I'll be on the plane back home. But I'm having a great time and I know when it's over, I'll be glad I came here."

Kathy Wright

What's Stirring in the States?

THE VOLUNTEER STATE--Engineers for the past week have been partially draining rain-swollen Laurel Hill Lake 50 miles southwest of Nashville, Tenn., trying to keep a dam from breaking and flooding the Buffalo River Valley.

Coliseum race
THE OLD DOMINION--Now that the city of Hampton seems to be moving ahead on its plans for a "Hampton Roads Coliseum," officials in Norfolk and Richmond, also planning coliseums, probably are wondering where the coliseum race will end. Is a hotter sports war in southeastern Virginia inevitable?

Priest throws block
THE GARDEN STATE--Father Leonard Orzechowski, a Catholic priest who played half-back in high school, got a lot of attention in Atlantic City, N. J., when he successfully threw a body block on a purse snatcher and helped capture him.

Youth corps formed
THE PENINSULA STATE--The City Council of Fort Myers, Fla., decided to fight the "long hot summer" by finding jobs for Negro teenagers. Councilmen arranged a self-help youth corps program to clean up slums and labeled it "Operation Cool Summer."

Survey planned
EMPIRE STATE (of the North)--The Environmental Services Administration of the U. S. Department of Commerce is making the first complete survey of Long Island Sound since the 1800's. The ship Whiting is doing part of the job.

City Council Approves Motels

By Carolyn McAllen

A short docket, a broken air conditioning unit and pre-election campaigning all contributed to a short, 27-minute Virginia Beach City Council meeting Monday afternoon, July 10.

Council appropriated $10,000 for the Dredge Commission and $5,000 for the salt water program for Back Bay until they have budgets of their own.

Council passed a resolution authorizing City Manager W.

Russell Hatchett to notify the U.S. Department of the Interior of greater Virginia Beach's mass transportation problem. It is a step to gaining federal aid to develop a mass transit system for the city.

Hatchett showed council members canceled checks totaling $25,000 for the purchase of Lake Joyce and Lake Bradford. Virginia Beach sent them to Norfolk to pay for the lakes. Norfolk reportedly has been having a problem getting a clear title to the property, which that city earlier agreed to sell to Virginia Beach.

Council took these actions on some zoning matters:

An application for a use permit to operate a Marineland on Shore Drive and East Stratford Road was allowed to be withdrawn.

An application by Carousel, Ltd., for a use permit to build a motel at 13th Street and Atlantic Avenue was approved.

An application of Seacoaks, Inc., for a use permit to construct a 38-unit motel on the southeast corner of Atlantic Avenue and 27th Street was approved.

An application from Garland M. Barlow Jr. for a use permit to operate a gasoline station on the northeast corner of South Witch Dock Road and Bonney Road was denied.

An application of E.R. Carroll for a change of zoning from Agricultural District to General Commercial and a use permit to operate a machine shop of property on the west side of Oceana Boulevard near Gunn Hall Drive was denied.

An application of D.J. Grover for a change of zoning from Residence Suburban to General Commercial and a use permit to operate an automotive repair garage and repair and supply of restaurant equipment on South Lynnhaven Road near the proposed Brookwood Shopping Center was denied.

Expressway Progress

Rubble, Which Always Accompanies a Construction Job, Partially Frames Workmen Busy on Part of the Complex Interchange, for the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway, at the Fork of Laskin Road and Virginia Beach Boulevard. Conflict of 'Time'

The outcome of Tuesday's primary election was a speculative matter, and not a fact by the time the Virginia Beach Sun went to press.

Coming Up

Carl and Pearl Butler, husband and wife team, and Skeeter Davis from the Grand Ol' Opry will join Rudy Wesley and the Pallisades as headliners for a Country Music Show at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, July 15, on the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center stage.

Goodwill To Expand

Norfolk Goodwill Industries recently received $101,300 to expand its rehabilitation services.

The money included a gift of $25,325 to Goodwill from the United Communities Fund.

The Atlantic Fleet Band will conduct a concert at Red Wing Park on Sunday, July 23 from 7 to 8 p.m. near the park's shelter. The public is invited.

Art Show Adds Color, With International Touch

The 12th annual Boardwalk Art Show, which adds its colorful touch to the main resort area of greater Virginia Beach for five days, has more international flavor than ever before.

Mrs. C.R. Masterson, chair-

New Bonney Road Opens to Traffic

The first section of roadway in the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway system is open to traffic, although it is not on the main highway.

It is a relocated section of Bonney Road, where the toll road interchange just south of Pembroke Manor is reshaping traffic patterns.

Traffic on Bonney, between the Princess Anne Plaza and Kempsville shopping areas, now goes on a pavement poured where the expressway's interchange will go over a southern extension of Independence Boulevard at Pembroke.

Based on present state highway plans, passenger cars will be able to travel from Norfolk to the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center area, or vice versa, for a 10-cent toll, by the end of this year.

The show, which through the years has become the largest "open outdoor" show in the nation, has nearly 500 artists this year, Mrs. Masterson said.

Prizes totaling $2,675, only a few dollars less than last year, will be awarded after judging Saturday at the Virginia Beach Civic Center (the Dome). The judging is closed to the public and artists.

The south end of the concrete boardwalk, or between 7th and 17th streets, is the scene for the show again this summer. And it will run through Monday, a day longer than in the past.

While the artists peddle their paintings, sculptures, prints and other works, they will keep their eyes on the sky in case clouds arise.

The show hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except on Saturday, when it is scheduled to be open until 8 p.m. As in the past, the show closes temporarily when and if rain falls.

Pumping Station Is Being Built

Van de Riet Co. of Norfolk has started building a sewage pumping station as part of the sanitary sewer system in the Belle Haven area between Virginia Beach Boulevard and Kings Grant.

Van de Riet has a $32,000 contract on the job. The pumping station will send waste from lateral lines into the Hampton Roads Sanitation District's interceptor being installed on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The interceptor is expected to be in service by early next summer. The pumping station site is beside N. Lynnhaven Road.

See Art Show Supplement for Details

Mrs. Masterson

Sidelights of the show include $1 photographs for visitors to benefit the Norfolk Museum's purchase fund for Renold's "Trees," quick-sketch artists and a concert from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday at 13th Street and the oceanfront, by the armed forces School of Music Show Band.

The show hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, except on Saturday, when it is scheduled to be open until 8 p.m. As in the past, the show closes temporarily when and if rain falls.

Precinct Draws Crowd

A crowd of curious persons, along with a large group of public officials, were on hand when the 3rd Police Precinct had its official opening and open house Saturday afternoon, July 7.

Among officials at the opening were Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Police Chief James E. Moore, and City Councilmen Robert Cromwell and Lawrence Marshall.

According to Chief Moore the precinct will be staffed and open about Aug. 1.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett commented on the time that will be saved by police officers who will no longer have to drive prisoners to Princess Anne Courthouse.

"In the past police were out of the precinct as long as an hour and a half while transporting prisoners," he said.

City Has Less Felons

Virginia Beach ranked eighth among major Virginia cities in the number of persons committed to the state prison system for felony offenses during the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1966.

violation of probation in 224 cases, and state courts revoked probation in 181 cases.

"Virginia Beach ranked tenth among major cities in the state in public welfare spending, behind Richmond, Norfolk, Roanoke, Portsmouth, Newport News, Chesapeake, Lynchburg, Petersburg and Danville—in that order. (The Virginia Beach public assistant total was $716,306 in federal, state and city funds.)

Homeowners, with a growing concern for the appearance of their lawns, turn to many aspects of lawn care in hopes that "this" will help.

Fertilizing is one of the important aspects of lawn care that many people turn to. This is very important, and most of the time is precisely what the lawn needs. However, when fertilizing, be sure that the grass is dry when the fertilizer is applied. If it is not, the fertilizer will burn the grass. If the lawn is watered thoroughly following fertilizer application, the chances of fertilizer burn are reduced to the minimum.

Another important thing to remember when fertilizing is not to exceed recommended rates. Recommended rates will give you a healthy, vigorous growing turf; more may kill your lawn.

Stage Becomes Desert

Tons of sand were hauled to Williamsburg to convert the Wedgewood Dinner Theater there into a hot desert island for Andre Roussin's "The Little Hut," which opened a four-week run Tuesday, July 11.

Frank Staroba, as Henry, has been Susan's lover for years, and on the tropical Isle he decides with a proper English charm he must convince Philip, the unsuspecting husband played by Roby Brown, that they must share Susan, the not-so-unsuspecting wife, portrayed by Sandra McClung. Philip agrees to polygamy, and the plot thickens.

Their bliss is cut short with the appearance from the other side of the island of The Savage, played by Thomas Eaton. Bedlam breaks out when Susan disappears into the hut with The Savage.

A Mutual Federal Savings Passbook is the avenue to so many of life's desires that steady savers often have more than one.

- lets you add or withdraw funds as you please.
- you know your balance and earnings at a glance.
- passbooks require no big minimum balance.
- no need to tie up your savings for a long time.
- a lost passbook can be replaced quite easily.
- add to, or withdraw from, your account by mail.
- borrow against savings, still earn dividends.

Some steady savers at Mutual Federal label one passbook, "emergency expenses," another one, "college education," and perhaps another, "down payment on new home." Think of your own interesting titles!

Rich, McRae, Gwaltney To Head Kiwanis Jazz Festival

Buddy Rich and his band, vocalist Carmen McRae and Tommy Gwaltney and his Dixieland All Stars will headline the third annual Kiwanis Jazz Festival to be held Saturday, July 29, at the Civic Center beginning at 8:30 p.m.

All proceeds go to charity, according to John Haffling, chairman. Tickets are now on sale at the Civic Center, and at P. O. Box 226 and will be sold at Carroll's Drive Ins beginning Saturday, July 15.

Rich, in the last year, has become familiar to many television viewers by his appearances as summer replacement for the Jackie Gleason show. But his professional start came when his parents carried him on stage to play the drums when he was 18 months old.

Rich played with Artie Shaw, Les Brown, Tommy Dorsey and Harry James before forming his own band. He specializes in jazz which he describes as, "something you can hear yourself in. We're trying to say that this is today and today is groovy."

Carmen McRae would have been a concert pianist instead of a singer if she had listened to her parents. But, with encouragement from Duke Ellington, she launched her career in singing. Carol Channing described her as the "girl with a haunt in her voice."

Besides radio, television, and night clubs, her appearances include Carnegie Hall, New York Jazz Festival and Newport, R.I., Jazz Festival.

Tommy Gwaltney and his Dixieland All Stars are a local jazz group who have made many appearances in the Tidewater area since Gwaltney left here for Washington, D. C., several years back.

E. H. Jarvis, vice president of the Union Mission, said the mission is no longer supported by the United Communities Fund as previously reported.

Bayside Presbyterian To Have New Minister

The Rev. Fletcher C. Hutchenson will begin his pastorate at the Bayside Presbyterian Church Sunday, July 16.

Rev. Hutchenson will be replacing the Rev. John E. Johnson who is retiring.

congregation gave the retiring minister and his wife some furniture for their newly-purchased retirement home.

Rev. Hutchenson has been pastor of the Northwest Presbyterian Church in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Marine Reserves Train

Members of Marine Reserve Attack Squadron (VMA)-233 are currently undergoing two weeks of training at their home base, Naval Air Station, in Norfolk. They will be there through July 15.

During the two weeks active duty the pilots will also be trained in rocket firing, live bomb runs and strafing operations at ranges in the Virginia Capes and the Cherry Point, N. C. area.

Pilots of VMA-233 are flying the Douglas A-4 "Skyhawk", an aircraft presently being used in Vietnam.

Members of VMA-233 are: Cpl. Cecil A. Holmes of Route 4, Pfc. Stanley M. Hooper of Sirmine Avenue, Pfc. John W. Thurston of Crestline Drive, Pfc. James R. Taylor of Baldwin Street, Lance Cpl. A Medical Missile

For a medical man, Dr. William Hotchkiss turned out to be a right good missile man as he fired a verbal one at the Health, Welfare and Recreation Planning Council the other day.

Hotchkiss, speaking for a study group of the Tidewater Hospital Council and medical societies in our metropolitan area, disagreed with a council idea to give it and the Community Services Council of Portsmouth the say on regional medical planning.

The Health, Welfare and Recreation Planning Council is too allied with the Norfolk Area Medical Center Authority (NA MCA) and would have a "conflict of interests" in making regional decisions, the doctor contended. NAMCA has the task of getting a medical school in Norfolk.

Dr. Hotchkiss made a good point for the sake of regional cooperation.

Greater Virginia Beach is a part of the region, and many doctors in our city are willing to cooperate as long as Virginia Beach and its medical facilities are not excluded from development.

A proposal drawn by William F. Henderson, a consultant in Raleigh, N. C., is more to our liking.

Henderson proposed a 30-member planning board for regional medical advancement, and it would have 17 laymen and 13 professional persons.

Whether there should be so many laymen is a matter worth debating, but this does not negate the basic element of Henderson's plan, which is fairness.

The Oceanfront Blues

It isn't unusual to hear motel operators in the boardwalk resort area of greater Virginia Beach groaning about poor business. But some have been groaning louder than usual.

There are always sceptics who figure the motel man with the blues is talking for the benefit of the federal tax-collecting guys. But that's pure speculation.

Whatever individual motives may be, up to now this has not been the best of summers for all who depend on tourism for either a fast buck, or a comfortable living.

Some who are aware of the value of promotion seem to be doing quite well and expect to finish slightly ahead of last year's record business.

Those not doing so well tend to blame Expo '67, the weatherman and his "30-per-cent-chance-of-rain" predictions, newspapers and the war, among other things. Each probably is having some effect.

There are other factors, including increased competition for the tourist dollar in Virginia and her neighboring states.

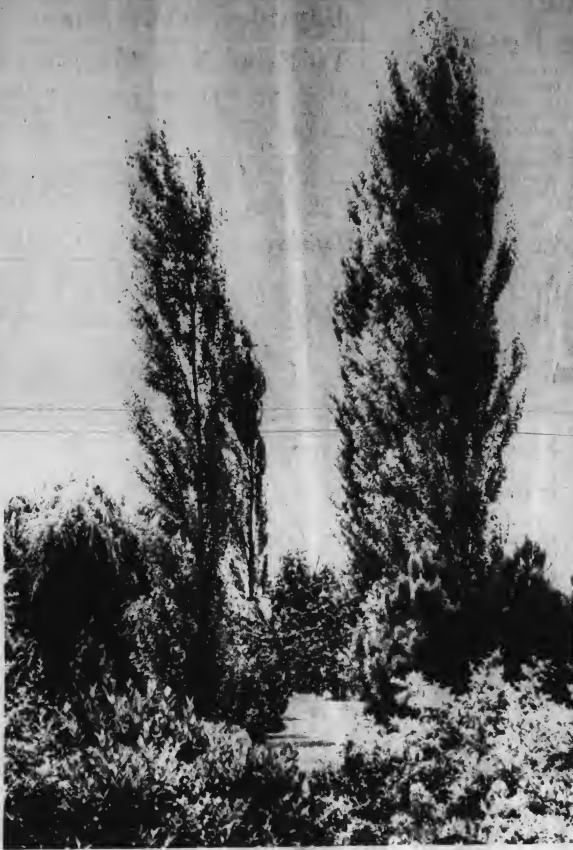

Despite what the season has shown up to now for the tourist industry in Virginia Beach, better day may be ahead.

If the predictions of some tourist-oriented sages hold up, some hotter weather is on the way. And there are no indications now of hurricane problems.

Since the beach along the boardwalk is as high and wide as it has ever been in recent years, this city will get a good number of those in suburbs and central cities to the north who head for cool waters.

There's only one thing wrong with hot spells in the tourist industry along the boardwalk. When it doesn't shower, visitors don't have to head for restaurants and stores, which also comprise a major part of the tourist business in the city.

Somewhat, it just seems one man's happiness is another's headache.

Appreciation

Dear Editor:

Let me take this opportunity to express appreciation for the comments which you made in the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN concerning the plans for Phase II of our long range development program at Virginia Wesleyan College. We are convinced that a firm foundation has been established here and we must now build on this foundation.

A strong library system is a central part of the community life as you have indicated, and we would hope that our new library here will benefit the surrounding communities. The college certainly has many assets and we feel it can make significant contributions to the economic, cultural and educational life of the community.

There is a great challenge ahead for us. This challenge is matched by the tremendous opportunity now to insure the future of this college in the greater Tidewater area.

Sincerely,
James R. Bergdoll
Assistant to the President

For Administration

Dear Editor:

As a citizen of Virginia Beach and not having a knowledge of politics, I am at a point of trying to analyze just what the forthcoming elections in reference to our city officials means to me.

I ask myself just what the present administration has done in the past few years in office. I start to think what would have happened if Sidney Kellam and our present officials had not banded together and started to build the foundation of what has now become a very fast growing city with new schools, new roads, new recreation parks, new public beaches, new library

Invited

The VIRGINIA BEACH SUN welcomes letters to the editor. All will be printed when space permits. Each letter must be signed and include address of the writer, but only the name will be published. Letters are invited on all subjects.

ies, excellent police protection and good public works and utilities departments.

After seeing and living through the above growth mentioned, I have to listen to someone say we need a change. This I do not believe. I do say that we should give the present administration time to complete the projects and plans they have started and have full knowledge of. Also the present councilmen are very close to the administration team and any change in our city officials would be like a Democratic president with a Republican congress.

John Lane

Accident Theory Disputed

The idea that a small group of "dangerous drivers" cause the majority of traffic accidents is debunked in a recent study made by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads.

The best analysis show that most traffic accidents happen to normal people driving in a normal way on normal roads in all makes and kinds of cars. It is not the drunk nor the youth who account for the major portion of all accidents although as a group these individuals may be involved in proportionately more accidents than other groups.

The Government report concluded, "It is clear that if accidents are to be reduced radically, all drivers rather than a selected group of 'dangerous drivers' must be helped... Drivers are being asked to make judgments they cannot make well; to make decisions faster than is humanly possible and to make changes in speed and steering more accurately than they possibly can.

This means that the prevention of accidents requires additions and modifications to the vehicle and the roadway to make driving more reliable and more effective." To this we say—"Amen."

Sun Report

Is Hong Kong a 'Hostage'?

Events are moving swiftly in the world today, and recent reports from Hong Kong, where East meets West and North meets South, told of a Communist Chinese attack on a police station.

There also were reports from that southeast Asian city that some bar girls and bar operators came to the rescue of sailors who became entangled in rioting, adding a sex angle to the Hong Kong happenings.

For this VIRGINIA BEACH SUN report, here are excerpts from a July 1966 story on Hong Kong in United States Naval Institute Proceedings. The author was Col. Robert D. Helml, Jr., USMC (Ret.).

"In considering the political situation of Hong Kong today, it is important to note that both the island proper and Kowloon were ceded outright to Great Britain and are thus inalienably hers. Unfortunately—for reasons not wholly clear—when the time came for the third, final, and largest accession of territory, in 1898, it was arrived at by a 99-year lease (expiring in 1997). . . .

Not a 'pinprick'

"In the residuum of the British Empire, Hong Kong is anything but a pinprick. By population (3,739,000 in 1964) it is now Britain's largest colony (also larger than some 30 U. S. states) and growing every day. Because of the tides of Chinese procreation and immigration—refugees still make the try and many succeed—Hong Kong has to start a new school every four days. . . .

"Hong Kong's scarcest resources are land, food, and water. Even so, 90,000 inhabitants work at farming and fishing, and—another surprise to many—10,000 are miners. Hong Kong has mineral resources and, in fact, produces iron ore at the rate of $50 tons a day.

Food & water problem

"But food and water remain the colony's toughest problems. Despite intensive cultivation, 52 per cent of Hong Kong's food is imported from China and, more critical in military terms, so is much of its water. In a problem not unlike that which faced Guantanamo for many years, Hong Kong depends on the Communists for 15 billion gallons of pipeline water a year, plus occasional emergency tanker runs to Pearl River, to augment the colony's reservoir capacity.

Chinese 'top importers'

"China has some interest in retaining Hong Kong in status quo. Hong Kong is still an important entrepot, China's most important entrepot, to the West. Despite American economic warfare measures, large quantities of Communist Chinese manufactures do reach Western markets via Hong Kong, and needed foreign exchange flows the other way. In return for fisheries rights, the Chinese require that each Hong Kong fishing boat unload a portion of its catch in Chinese hands. Other than food, 22 per cent of Hong Kong's imports come from mainland China; this makes the Chinese the top importers into Hong Kong. By selling water and food, the Chinese gain a continuing supply of sterling (just as Castro made money from Guantanamo until the valves were turned off), and they thereby have a lever which can be applied not only to Hong Kong specifically but to Great Britain in other matters. In a real sense, Hong Kong, one of Britain's few remaining profitable colonies is therefore a hostage to Communist China."

Weekly Fare

Being a weekly newspaper editor has its highspots and its low spots, just like any occupation on the face of Mother Earth.

One of the main low spots is finding out some of those fellows on the big dailies are tough competition on a particular story. One of the high spots is finding out they also read the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

But the SUN has other readers in newspaper circles. They include weekly and other editors across Virginia, editors of business and industrial publications, etc., etc.

After beating around the mulberry tree, it's time to come to the point.

The small-paper editors in Virginia have some interesting comments at times on state, national and world affairs.

To give them an opportunity to beat their chests, or toot their horns more vigorously, the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, beginning next week, will have in this quiet corner or near it a little of the humor, serious thoughts and what-have-you from a variety of newspapers.

And it may prove enlightening for you.

Tale of a Pollywog

There is on the high seas at any given moment a host of pollywogs.

To a civilian in greater Virginia Beach who has never crossed the equator while aboard a Navy ship, a pollywog may be a pond tadpole.

But to a shellback—an experienced sailor—the tale of a pollywog is a painful matter.

For this reason, it would be more entertaining if anyone wanting to learn about it asked a shellback.

There are plenty of them living in the suburbs of greater Virginia Beach.

Teams Prepare for Tournament

All-star teams of the Lynnhaven and Kempsville Col leagues are hard at practice for the Region II Tournament where they go against each other to see who gets a crack at the arch-rival Norfolk All Stars.

The tournament opens at 6:30 p.m. Monday, July 17, at Trant Memorial Field off Little Neck Road, with a double header. The second game pits the winner of the Kempsville-Lynnhaven battle against Norfolk.

In regular league play, the Tigers and Cardinals tied for first in the Lynnhaven loop and Jack Pearce managed the Greenwich Titans to victory in the Kempsville circuit.

Track Meet Scheduled

A city-wide playground track and field meet will be held at Princess Anne High School on Wednesday, July 19, at 6 p.m. for boys under 16 and those under 20, in separate competition.

Events are: 120 yard high hurdles, 100 yard dash, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, 1 mile relay (team of four), 220 yard dash, 180 yard low hurdles, 2 mile run, 100 yard shuttle hurdles (team of four), long jump, triple jump, pole vault, high jump, discus and shot put.

Entries must be submitted to the playground directors by Monday, July 17.

Bill Tate, Lynnhaven league president and director of the Pony regional tournament, announced the Cardinals as unofficial league winners because they downed the Tigers 2 out of 3 games. The tournament ruled out a play-off.

All star players for the Kempsville Pony team are:

Jimmy Pearce, Johnny Johnson, Don Hauck, Ronny Gwaltney Lee Taylor, David Jordan, and Ronnie Harrison of the Titans; Rick Scarper, Roy Wright, Mike Hickman, Otis Gull, and Billy Russell of the Rebels, and Billy Paschall of the Independents.

Steve Estes of the Rebels is an alternate, and Jack Pearce is managing the all-star team, assisted by Jack Jr.

C of C Moves to Strengthen Retail Trade in City

The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, with more than 700 members in greater Virginia Beach, is strengthening its retail trade program after more than a year of laying the groundwork.

Adam Orgera, manager of the Sears Roebuck & Co. store at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center, is spearheading the development of a Retail Trade Bureau and trying to strengthen the Better Business Bureau in this area.

The Chamber, once oriented to the resort area of Virginia Beach along tourist-promotion lines, began putting more emphasis on the retail trade field last year when Lawrence A. Sancilio headed a retail trade committee.

R. Bradshaw Pulley, chamber president, said that this year Orgera "has really designed the plan."

The Retail Trade Bureau plan may be ready in the fall for action by the chamber's board of directors. If all goes well, the bureau could be functioning by January of 1968.

Pulley said the bureau will be "an arm" of the chamber but have its own board of directors.

The chief tourist group is the Virginia Beach Innkeepers, which is working closely with the chamber.

The Chamber of Commerce also plans to work with neighborhood business groups in the Bayside, Kempsville and London Bridge areas of greater Virginia Beach.

Walter J. Leveridge, a Bayside businessman who heads an association there, recently met with chamber officials to coordinate efforts.

Leveridge has long headed the operation of a local information center on Shore Drive near the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. There also is an information center financed by Virginia Beach, Norfolk, Portsmouth and Chesapeake.

The state government, however, plans soon to open a tourist information center on the Eastern Shore, north of the bay crossing, and this may eliminate the need for an area-wide center.

Pulley said tentative thinking of the Chamber of Commerce is to locate a Virginia Beach center on Shore Drive, and Leveridge has been asked to make recommendations.

Working with Orgera on the chamber's retail trade committee are Joseph deCreny, manager of the GEX store west of Pembroke; Frank W. Kellam, who heads Princess Anne Plumbing & Electrical Supplies; Edward R. Amburn at Virginia National Bank's Plaza office and Wilbert O'Connell, manager of the Peoples Service Drug Store on Las-kin Road.

Better Business Bureau activities in Virginia Beach are a part of the Tidewater Better Business Bureau operation under the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, and a number of businessmen believe the bureau should be an independent organization, as it is in other major cities.

The Women

VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

Thursday, July 13, 1967

Sitting in her living room, Mary Sigillo looks through the pages of her scrapbook. In it are pictures and documents, letters and drawings--grim reminders of her life in Europe during the war years.

(SUN PHOTOS)

Teenie Boppersville

Though its place in the sun is still somewhat in question, Teenie Boppers have swooped on the Sandbox, settling down for 30 days (at least) of dancing to their very own IN sounds, munching their hamburgers the way they like them, sipping soft drinks by the gallon.

They do little sitting. Mostly they're on their bare feet, which are in perpetual motion. Most are local but visiting teens are finding it a home away from home... a place they understand and are, in turn, understood.

The future of Ted Torok's Sandbox is still up in the air... his operating license a temporary one.

But Teenie-Boppers live for the present... and the present is Now... and the Now place is the Sandbox.

On a quiet street serving a cluster of immaculately-kept homes in one of the city's suburban residential neighborhoods, lives a small family not unlike most other small families seeking similar solitude: they religiously mow their lawns, wash their cars, turn on their air conditioners when the weather warrants it. In this one family, though, there is indeed a difference: the faucet never ever drips, the family car is never run through the new modern car-wash operation on the corner. This operation uses steam and to Mary Sigillo, the drippy faucet, the burst of steam are grim reminders of the months of horror she experienced behind the walls of World War II concentration camps... reminders which awaken memories she has kept to herself but which she now relates for SUN readers. Serialization of Mary Sigillo's story begins today.

I was born in Lawrence, Mass. When I was 7, my brother and I went with my mother to live in Belgium with my grandparents. I was educated in a convent, in a very religious atmosphere. I studied music, graduating from a music academy in Belgium.

My mother was a barber and until the war broke out, everything went along in a normal way.

No Time to Prepare

People ask me if there was advance word of what was happening, if there was time to prepare. I say no, because it happened so very, very fast. As a matter of fact, I was working at the time as a re-weaver. I was then 16 years of age.

It was on a Friday. All at once word broke out that there was a war on. Oh, we had heard about Poland and Hungary and Czechoslovakia, but all of this was so far away from us. There were few radios.

We were sent home from work very early that afternoon, and as we left, there was much confusion and commotion. People were running here and there, not really knowing where to go.

Belgium is such a small country, it was taken in no time. We had never seen any bombs fall; this was one of the scary things: the bombs. To this day, planes going overhead don't bother me. When planes go far away, in a bunch, that sound is what bothers me because that was the sound of the planes. The men who were not in the service would wake us up when the sirens would go on; they would just bang on everybody's door to wake you up to get you to the shelter.

Our shelter was a place where they kept the beef preserved for the winter.

It held about 30 people... neighbors and ourselves. It was crowded and we were naturally very tense. A child crying, for instance, could aggravate the people so much because they were afraid that the planes would hear. This was the fright and the fear that the war brought. But we were fortunate to have it in our back yard... as it came in handy later on.

Suddenly, a soldier came by on his motorcycle to tell us the Germans were not too far away. We fed him and he left.

The First Attack

The sight of war is horrible. People stood around in groups and groups and groups... all in lines, with their children, their wheelbarrows, their horses and carts, confused and wanting to go away... not really knowing where... just taking a few of their belongings and fleeing.

On that Sunday afternoon, following the day we were released from our jobs, I was out on my bicycle and all at once the planes came... very low... and just machine-gunned children, men, women, horses. After the siren was over, the people couldn't run anywhere, it was the most gruesome thing to see. Women were screaming, children were screaming, dogs were barking, animals were running loose, horses dead or half-dead and the people were too stunned to do anything about it.

I went home, but it left quite a scar on me.

That evening, my mother's family came to us from Brussels. The plane as refugees to our home. We slept on the floor... all over the house.

They'd fled their home because the Germans were coming in.

About two in the morning we heard footsteps. We looked out the window and the Germans were there patrolling the place. Right there, for the first time in my life, I heard the German language spoken by German soldiers.

The following day, we found that a lot of English soldiers, French soldiers and Belgian soldiers had been captured... by the thousand and thousand.

The prisoners were put in various buildings. Renix, though small, is very pretty, very clean. Everything is in walking distance.

My home was surrounded by the church, the convent, an orphanage, the men's prison, and a building that had been the Belgian Army Headquarters.

As you entered the headquarters, to the left was a small office, and in that office there were "livres", identification books which, if you are in the Service, you'd better have with you. It's like a passport; but it is not called a passport. In this office were blank books.

Without actually intending to, I found myself stealing these books. At the time I didn't know what I was going to do with them all but I took them anyway. So I climbed out of the office window and tossed the books out. When it got dark, I went and picked them up. I got away with it.

Then I thought how easy it would be for me to get inside the building across the street where they were keeping the prisoners. I saw that sometimes the prisoners--the captured French, English, and Belgian soldiers--could walk back and forth across the street, wearing Red Cross badges.

Getting Them Out

So I started to smuggle in, piece by piece and as many times that I could, pots of boiled potatoes. The Belgian people are great potato eaters. The Germans knew that. With the potatoes I was able to get past the Germans and take the food in, to give to the soldiers. But under all of the potatoes I'd put maybe a pair of pants, a shirt or some article that a man could wear to help him escape. This was a way of getting the men out of there and, of course, the rendezvous would be our home.

We had French, English, Belgian boys hiding upstairs and sometimes at the same time we had the Germans peeling potatoes downstairs. They knew I was taking these potatoes in but they didn't know there were prisoners upstairs also peeling potatoes.

So these were my first acts... and of course, we had the boys... a lot of them... Australians, Czechs, Yugoslavs, and even a few Germans who were sick and tired of what they were doing and wanted to have freedom.

This is where those military books came in handy, because in the meantime, both of my uncles would fill in all of the information on military background and we were able to pass these books to all of the boys before they left our house. They could then we hoped, make their way to France.

Big Bertha

Then there was the Germans' Big Bertha, which I was told at that time was one of the largest guns the Germans had.

From Now On

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

When an invitation says "Noon on".... take my advice and be there at noon.

After years of arriving as the last empty tray is being carried out of the room, I believe I've finally learned that "from noon on" or "from 6 p.m. on" is but a teaser, a little bit of wordiness intended to imply that this will really be a gasser unlike any other.... that it will go on and on and on, as long as a single soul remains standing.

'Taint so at all.

To succeed on the cocktail circuit.... and some not only succeed but subsist... you must come early and stay late.

If the invitation says "6 p.m. on", be there at 6.... unless your family is a lot different from mine.

Mine, especially the head of the family, likes to eat.

The dance of the seven veils can be going on in front of him, a direct telecast can be coming through from Vietnam, a World Series bases-loaded game can be in progress, but these things cannot fill his stomach when it's time to eat. Our darkest hours have been the result of his hunger pains and my lallygagging.

So when I lallygagged on the Fourth, I had not only him but the rest of the family to reckon with.

The delightful invitation to a Fourth of July lawn party carried those fateful words.... "from noon on." The invitation also said there'll be chicken, corn on the cob, liquid refreshments. Just bring your family and your mugs.

The bag of mugs was packed by 10 that morning.

In my opinion, I said, we go at five.

Five, they shouted, what are we waiting for?

We can't spend the day, I reasoned, so if we go at five, we can lallygag a bit, eat, drink, lallygag a bit more then go home. No drain on anyone, particularly the hosts (and particularly since we're so numerous, I'm thinking).

(See 31st and Pacific Page 7)

They placed it in front of our home in an open pasture.

The first shot they let go from that gun, our whole house moved. All of our doors were either knocked in or thrown out of proportion. We had a wooden partition between two rooms in the downstairs of my house and that was knocked far out of place. Every window was thrown out. The front door was knocked out. The roof came down, the ceilings came down. The only place we could find to be safe was in a hole that had been dug in the yard for my mother. In that hole, we spent our nights with blankets and pillows. This is in the ground, mind you, in a hole in the ground with absolutely no shielding around it.

I remember at one time that gun went off and the dirt was falling down and my mother said, Dear Lord, protect my children as she was trying to hold up the dirt.

You know, it's my mother who suffered the most. We prayed not only for ourselves, but for everybody who was in the same condition that we were.

One day we came out of the hole we saw that our house was looking pretty demolished. There was no man around at that time because my uncle wasn't home, and we knew then that this was really war.

We Are Suspected

They had learned that we were Americans, and that most likely we were spies because the English had built the shelter for us. So my mother had to explain. I wouldn't say spies, I guess they thought that we had collaborated with the English. My mother explained that the shelter was there by friends who thought that they would help her since she was a woman (See A Woman's Story Page 7)

13 From Here In Contest For Area Title

Thirteen teen-age girls in greater Virginia Beach are among 50 in the Tidewater Virginia area competing for the title of Miss Tidewater 1967.

The 15th annual pageant will be at Suburban Country Club in Portsmouth at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 13. It is sponsored by Zuleika Court No. 35, Ladies Oriental Shrine of North America.

The Virginia Beach aspirants are:

Lynn and Vickie Williams of Opal Avenue, Sheryl Smith and Jane Edwards of Green Valley Drive, Sharon Ross of Slimkins Lane, Arlene Hensen of Klamath Road, Debbie Fox of Justis Street, Sandy Goocham of Ben Franklin Lane, Sherry Turley of Holland Road, Jacqueline Edmonds of Thoroughgood Drive, Nancy Ohman of War Admiral Road, Arlene Jones of Capot Road, and Barbara Hanson of Victoria Drive.

Miss Arlene Reeves, a Chesapeake girl chosen Miss Tidewater 1966, is a vocalist with the Fred Waring orchestra.

Jaycees Name Finalists

Virginia Beach Jaycees narrowed its field of contestants for the next Miss Virginia Beach down to 15 in an elimination contest held recently in Virginia Biggs Dancing School, Princess Anne Plaza.

The judges, Larry Williams, Charles Daws, Giles Dodd, Mrs. E. Lucile Church and Mrs. Olga Edwards chose the following girls who will compete for the crown Aug. 4 in the Virginia Beach Civic Center:

Claudia Jane Chase, 1041 Miles Standish Road

Audrey Faye Stocks, 4808 Lonewillow Lane

Linda Christine Satterfield, 1105 Rittman Road

Barbara Ann Simpson, 3844 Old Forge Road

Annette Theresa Riccio, 3524 Bow Creek Blvd.

We compromised and went at four; next year we'll go at ten a.m.

At four the corn pot was empty, the refreshment box was dry, the chicken bones were bare. About all that was left was the flag sticking in the ground.

Things were a bit sticky.

So I'm carrying my lunch this week. I blew my week of lunches on dinner out on the Fourth. For this week, and probably next, I'll be right here in my office . . . "from noon."

The Racqueteers They're Having a Ball

Members of the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association have announced plans for a Tennis Ball . . . a swinging way to keep the racquets going.

The group that started the ball rolling here last September has found its project . . . tennis . . . so warmly and enthusiastically received that they're proceeding with program expansion plans.

They've scheduled a fund-raiser Aug. 20 in the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

The Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association was founded here to stimulate interest in tennis in the schools, playgrounds and parks; to provide coaching instruction for young players; and to organize tennis tournaments and exhibitions. Included in their plans is a program for improvement and enlargement of existing tennis facilities.

Mrs. David Stormont, ball co-chairman with Mrs. Edmond Johnson, said that the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons Association Inc. is trying to raise funds to bring tennis to everyone in the city.

"We now have a pilot project at the Virginia Beach Junior High School, in conjunction with the Recreation Bureau. We have employed Chamie Baldwin to teach and supervise at these three courts Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. all summer.

"We are naturally very enthusiastic about this and want to extend this program, if successful, throughout the entire city.

"Hence the Tennis Ball . . . to raise funds to pay for this project and for our future plans."

Mrs. Stormont said that the Department of Recreation and the Planning Commission have been most receptive and cooperative to all of the association's suggestions. She added that Virginia Beach has more public school tennis courts than any other city in the state.

Mrs. George Harris is serving as president of the group.

A Woman's Story

with two children. But the construction of it showed that it had been made by military men.

We were questioned over and over (this is 1940); we were scared people, frightened people.

All of this did something to me. I'm an American; I was brought up to be Christian . . . to love everybody—and I thought that I had to get away from here. We are humans, and we are apt to make mistakes but at this time I felt that I had to protect my mother . . . that there was something I had to do, I couldn't go on the way we were going on. We were hungry. All of our animals were killed. We had a pig, rabbits, chickens—all were killed because the Germans didn't want anything like that running around, especially pigeons. And if we didn't kill them other people would have killed them because everybody else was starving.

As time went on, things grew worse and worse.

Finally I managed to get hold of one of the few radios in the town, and though we were instructed not to listen to the BBC broadcasts (British), or we would be arrested, I did it anyway. I took little notes down. The BBC radio sent messages which they said if you could pass on to the men, it would encourage them and keep up their morale. I took these little notes and passed them to the English and French soldiers to cheer them up.

I felt that my uncle was working for the underground but though I was the oldest of the children, my uncle would not tell me what he was doing; he knew my character better than I did, so he didn't say anything.

But one day this man came to the house to get shaved and I asked him if he knew how I could get into the underground, that I wanted to be a Partisan.

My First Meeting

He sent me over to the French section of Belgium where I met two boys that I knew had to be working with the underground for the simple reason that you just didn't meet too many young fellows then. Most were either working in Germany or taken, so I approached them and we talked. They arranged a meeting and I was introduced to one of the leaders.

It was a very abrupt meeting. Television, movies, books could never describe, really, how the underground worker operates. I see sometimes these plays on television and they're so glamorized. You don't meet in elaborate and beautiful places, you have to meet in fields, woods or wherever you have the chance. You're introduced to two more, then there are three people that you are introduced to and you are getting an underground name.

From then on you don't mention your own name to anyone. No one knows your real name. You are given, first of all, a test to see in which field you are best qualified. They instruct you as to how to conduct yourself in case you are arrested, what you should say. You stick to what you have been taught to say; you continuously say it and say it and say it and it sticks in your mind so you can say it so truthfully.

I received the name first of all of Kiki and for each of the underground services I worked for they thought that I should have a different name. So I was called Kiki, I was called Germaine, I was called Carrol, Nellie and Cabbage. The names came in handy.

So I had my first assignment. I was a messenger. I would take the information from the radio, I would take my notes, then I would be assigned to a house where I would stay. I would have a typewriter and I would take these notes and make a newspaper. I became the writer of two little underground newspapers.

NEXT WEEK: Mary's underground activities, her uncle's arrest and her decision to leave home.

Sun Review 'Excellent' Comedy Opens at Cavalier

The question is... What happens when a thoroughly fastidious neurotic, recently tossed out by his wife of 12 years, is invited to move in with a thoroughly normal and happy, if very sloppy, divorced man who is having trouble keeping up his alimony payments to his ex-wife?

The answer is... the hilarity and misadventures of Neil Simon's fast-paced wisecracking comedy, The Odd Couple, expertly produced by Norfolk's Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, as its current offering.

The excellence with which Cavalier's new director, Will R. Hicks, Jr., moves his well-cast players is a joy to watch. The laughs are built in, but Hicks and Co. get the utmost from them.

Donald Hayes, as Oscar, (the one content in his sloppy eight-room luxury apartment) is most adept at assuming the many moods written into the character. The role is a tough one to keep up with, but Hayes handles it beautifully like the pro he is.

Hank Mauro, Bill Covington, Glenn Graham and James Siford, as the weekly poker players, all turn in fine, well-thought out performances. Particular accolades go to Mauro and Covington.

Ron LeBlanc's tasteful, if architecturally infeasible, apartment setting lends itself nicely to the success of the production.

"The world's toughest car."
Lyle Engel, Executive Editor, American Rodding Magazine

Peugeot cruises off with first place in the East African Safari Rally. Ninety cars started this grueling 3000-mile race. Only nine made it through. Peugeot came in first. It's very simple. Peugeot is built like a jungle animal: lean and rugged. And graceful. No chromium frills. No excess weight. No needless horsepower. (Take, for example, the wide use of aluminum in the Peugeot engine and rear end housing: less heat, less friction, longer wear.) On the highway, Peugeot is equally in its element. You can cruise all day at eighty and never see a sign of strain. You'll get better than 25 miles per gallon. With or without automatic transmission. (Safety? Peugeot was engineered for maximum protection 20 years before Detroit got on the kick.)

So add it up, you'll agree that Peugeot is the world's toughest car. (And underneath all that toughness is a lifetime friend.)

Brave Group Started Boardwalk Art Show

By Susan Axelrod

It all began back in the spring of 1956 when the Virginia Beach Art Association, a courageous band of volunteer workers, launched a small art show on the boardwalk during the Golden Anniversary Celebration for what was then Virginia Beach.

They called it an "Art Mart", and it was open to all artists over 18 years old and using any media.

The Association charged a small entrance fee of 50 cents and sent invitations to about 800 artists from Maine to Florida.

A $25 Start

That year, the Association offered a modest prize of $25 for Best in Show—a sharp contrast to the $1,000 award in recent years.

Winners were chosen that first year by Judges Winifred Baker Gillette, Leon Wooten and Phil Hornthal. A $15 prize was offered for the Most Popular work, chosen by the spectators. To the surprise of many, 104 artists entered 1275 works of art, and sales totaled about $2,783. Most of the exhibitors were local artists more interested in showing their work than in the awards and sales.

The Art Association bravely billed the 1956 show as its "First Annual".

Cynics had scoffed and said the idea would never work—but the show was a hit.

The public loved it, and when the 2nd Annual Boardwalk Art Show was announced the producers were surprised to find support in unimaginable places.

Happy Browsing

Merchants, hotel owners, and restaurateurs were enthusiastic. Many people who would never think of going to see a formal art show, browsed happily along the boardwalk, looking, admiring, criticizing—and buying.

The 1957 Boardwalk Art Show showed how far the little candle kindled by the Art Association had spread its beam.

Veterans from the previous show returned along with many newcomers. The cash prizes totaled $150, and the entrance fee rose to $1. A 10% commission on all sales was charged. The 1957 prize of Best in Show went to Loen Wooten for an oil, "Parking Lot", and for the second year, VED won the popularity prize. All told, there were 149 artists entered, 1,620 objects of art displayed, and a sales total of $2,715.50.

Sketches Added

Sketches while-you-wait, ceramics, sculptures and etchings became members of the ever-growing family of the Boardwalk Art Show.

Sheltered by porches and lobbies of ocean-front motels during a stubborn north-easter in 1959, the show had sales at $6,274.

In 1960, 207 artists competed for a $500 Best in Show prize—an increase of $175 the year before. The entry fee was raised to $5., but the Association eliminated the sales commission. Sales nearly doubled over the preceding year to $12,154.

The 1961 show raked in $17,000—setting a new sales record for an outdoor show. This handsome sum didn't include the barter sales, like a side of beef, frozen food, and a belt. Two hundred fifty artists competed for $550 in cash prizes, with $300 going to Best in Show.

Modes of Travel

Artists came for all over the country, arriving in cars, buses, planes, and even on a motorcycle, with paintings strapped on the side.

Hopes for the 1962 show looked grim for a long time because the Ash Wednesday storm that year had torn up the boardwalk. But rapid repairs made it possible to have the show on the south part of the boardwalk. This location was so successful, that it has been used ever since.

The show had grown in popularity by its seventh season, and a large amount of expense and labor prompted the City of Virginia Beach to contribute both financial and manpower aid. That year, an estimated 50,000 people viewed the works of 200 artists from 11 states and Canada. Again, sales soared hitting a high of $20,000.

For the tenth anniversary of the show, artists began making reservations for spots as early as January. Altogether 358 artists exhibited.

Among those who accepted invitations that year were a social worker, a servicer station attendant, a postman, a truck driver, a pawnbroker and a minister. There were also 75 well-known professionals joining in the competition for $800 in prizes and in sharing in the $30,000 spectators paid for various works.

In the show's 11th season, the prizes increased to $2,700, including $1,000 for Best in Show. The show was more compact in 1966, stretching from 7th to 17th Streets, on the boardwalk. It lasted for four days.

Dream Nears Reality

A long-time dream of artists in greater Virginia Beach is the erection of a permanent Fine Arts Center. And the annual Boardwalk Art Show is serving as the easel.

With each show, the dream comes nearer reality, but as of now officials of the Virginia Beach Art Association are not sure when it will be realized.

In anticipation of the center, the association has over the years been purchasing the Best in Show entries to exhibit in the future building.

Each year as the show grows in stature, featuring artists in all art media from scores of states and foreign nations, the show's backers get a lift.

This year, the artists are from nearly two dozen states and the District of Columbia and from at least a dozen foreign countries.

While some come to the United States for tourism and other reasons, a number of those from Europe have migrated to the United States.

Artist at Work

Program Features Laakso, Jackson

An original oil by Ruth Laakso, prominent Virginia Beach artist, is on the cover of this year's Souvenir Directory which is being sold at the Boardwalk Art Show.

Mrs. Laakso's cover suggests the carnival atmosphere of the show, in which she and her husband, sculptor George Laakso from Finland have exhibited for years.

Also in the 50-cent directory this year is a full-color print of artist A. B. Jackson's "Veronica's Vell", a collage judged Best in Show in 1966.

WHRO Gets In the Act

WHRO-TV, the educational television station in the Hampton Roads area, is making a film of the Boardwalk Art Show this year.

Mrs. C. R. Masterson, show chairman, said the film will be shown on a Virginia History class on the TV station, which is Channel 13.

Mrs. Laakso was born in New York, studied at the Arts Student League of New York, has exhibited widely and is represented in private and public collections.

Jackson, former head of the art department at Norfolk State College, is a Yale graduate, a consistent prize winner and is noted for his work in a broad range of media.

The souvenir program, along with space which the Virginia Beach Art Association rents to the exhibiting artists, are the association's money makers during the event.

Art is abounding

A painting of impression or inspiration, a pleasing piece of music, a Swan ballet, a powerful play of comic or tragic shade--these are only some of the forms of art.

And while the Virginia Beach Art Association is noted for its Boardwalk Art Show, The Virginia Beach Civic Chorus is noted for its spring productions, the Senior Women's Club, the Junior Women's Club for its Follies and the Virginia Beach Civic Center and shopping centers for their variety.

To many, there is art in the billow of a spinaker, the freckles of a golf ball, a surfboard in a curl, the barely-noted flattening of a baseball headed for the fence, the rising sweep of a church steeple and the color of money.

Art is many things... many ideas... many hopes, frustrations and bits of life.

Fink And His 1965 Winner

Five Winners Return

Five previous Best in Show winners of the annual Boardwalk Art Show are expected back this year, according to Mrs. C. R. Masterson, show chairman.

They are:

William Fletcher Jones, who won in 1959, and has been in Sansonite, Calif., for two years.

Lols Greiger of Baltimore, the 1963 winner, noted for her representational drawings and oils.

Marc Moon, the Cuyahoga, Ohio, artist known primarily for his oils and water colors and the 1964 show winner.

Bruce Paul Fink, Chicago sculptor in metal whose studio in that city is a mecca for sculptors who want to learn how to do things differently. He had the Best in Show in 1965.

A. B. Jackson, who has been stirring Norfolk art circles for several years. He captured the 1966 prize.

The winners through the years have primarily been oils, but a lithograph, a drawing and a water color have been among winners in recent years.

One of the most intriguing was Fink's sculptor, "Things Are Not Always What They seem."

The best part of the work was behind dark glass in the bottom half of the work, and photographers were unable to catch its lines.

Cool Drinks Are In

The raising of the American flag Thursday, July 13, at 10 a.m. at 13th Street officially opened the Boardwalk Art Show for 1967.

On Friday, July 14, the judges will select entries for final consideration. Selections will be indicated by special tags and seahorse flags.

The armed forces School of Music Show Band will have a concert on the lawn of the Bel Harbour Motel at 13th Street and Atlantic Avenue from noon to 2 p.m. Saturday, July 15. At 2 p.m. H. B. Caldwell, director of the Norfolk Museum of Arts and Sciences, will announce the awards. Best in Show and previous Best in Show winners currently exhibiting will be indicated by turquoise seahorse pennants. Prize winners in the 1967 Show will be marked by white seahorse pennants.

The winner of the Sketch Contest will be announced at 2 p.m. Sunday July 16, on the lawn of the Bel Harbour Motel.

The show closes at 5 p.m. Monday, July 17.

During the show the 1966 Best in Show will be on display on the screen just north of the 13th Street tent. Also on display there will be previous winners of the Sketch Contest.

Lemonade carts will go on the boardwalk daily at 11 a.m.

Idea Helps Art Fund

An unusual fund raising idea will be an added event at the Boardwalk Art Show.

For $1 persons can have their photographs taken in color to appear as Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," Reynolds's "Pinkie," Da Vinci's Mona Lisa, Grant Wood's "American Gothic," Botticelli's "Birth of Venus," Frans Hals' "Laughing Cavalier," or Van Gogh's "Zouave," near the 8th Street tent.

The money will be used for the Norfolk Museum's fund to purchase Renoir's "Trees at the Edge of a River" for its permanent collection. The goal is $19,000.

Art Show Provides Strange Statistics

There is almost enough chicken wire in the Boardwalk Art Show to fence a poultry farm—a small one, if you can put faith in statistics.

An estimated 1,024 man hours were spent in recent days, banding together 27,000 square feet of chicken wire with 7,076 lengths of mason's wire, and pounding holes in the ground with a sledgehammer for posts.

The chicken wire is on the boardwalk railing between 7th and 17th streets, and on the posts which "duplicate" the walk railing on the lawn side.

Another 3,666 man-hours are expected to be expended in making the show function during its five days, and 305 man-hours will be expended by policemen in patrolling and guarding the paintings in the show.

Among other calculations, the show committee estimates 10,000 paper cups, 400 gallons of lemonade, and 1,200 gallons of water will be used. Preshow mailing used 4,550 stamps. Nine and a half reams of paper (a ream is 480 sheets) were used prior to the opening.

However, the figures tell nothing of the man-hours spent during the year in planning and organizing the show.

Another factor which can not be estimated is the spirit that the artists, spectators, and workers bring to the show. And this determines the success or failure of the annual event, according to the show committee.

Top Prize Draws Artists

The top prize of $1,000 for the Best in Show has been one of the major artist-stimulators of the annual Boardwalk Art Show here in recent years.

The $1,000, plus other prizes and awards bring this year's total to $2,675, near the same as last year. And the prizes are contributed by the Virginia Beach Art Association and various individuals and businesses.

While artists may keep or sell most prize winners, the $1,000 for the Best in Show is a purchase award, and the work is added to the association's permanent collection.

Some other prizes range from $25 to $200 in such categories as oils and acrylics, watercolors, mixed media, prints, drawings, sculpture and ceramics. There are additional awards for the best representational oil and representational watercolor, the best contemporary work in any medium and the best sketch of the art show in progress.

Individual contributors are: Mrs. M. F. Fogler, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Roper II, J. P. Seiler, Henry Clay Hoffmeister II, Dr. Dudley Cooper and Mrs. Maurice Walter.

Business contributors are:

Miller & Rhoads Department Store, Seaboard Citizens National Bank, First National Bank of Norfolk, First & Merchants National, The Homestead, Sea Escape Motor Hotel, Horatio Motel, Homestead, Sea Escape Motor Hotel, Horatio Motel, Bel Harbour Motel, New Castle Motel, Carriage Inn Motel and Castaways Motel.

Sandpiper Motor Apartments, Dunes Motor Inn, Washington Club Inn, Holiday House Motel, Golden Sands Motel, Pirates' Cove Dining Room, The Lighthouse, Surf Rider, Puritan Recreation, Golden Dragon, Isle of Capri, Carrell's Surrey Cafeteria, the Studio Gallery, Ausley Gallery in Norfolk and Henry Eagleton Co. in Norfolk.

Show Means Work for Art Group For Months Behind the Scenes

Judges Share Interests

Judges for the 1967 Boardwalk Art Show on greater Virginia Beach's oceanfront this weekend have more in common than a love for art.

Both of them--Albert Christ-Janer and James Harithas--have spent some time at educational institutions in the Keystone State of Pennsylvania.

Christ-Janer, dean of art at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N. Y., in past years headed art departments at Pennsylvania State, as well as Michigan State and Stephens College in Missouri.

Harithas, curator of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, received a master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania after earning a bachelor of arts degree at the University of Maine.

Christ-Janer received his bachelor of arts degree from St. Olaf College and his master's degree from Yale.

Mrs. Tilbrook

He holds doctorates from Lake Erie College as well as from St. Olaf and has done graduate work at Harvard.

His painting is represented in major collections, both public and private, and he has received Guggenheim and Rockefeller awards.

Harithas has studied at the University of Frankfurt and L'Ecole National des Beaux Arts.

An authority on French, Mexican and American art, he has exhibited in Europe as well as in this country. His work, too, is widely represented in major collections.

While scores of persons will be working for the artists and buyers at the annual Boardwalk Art Show, which runs through July 17 in greater Virginia Beach's main resort area, most of their labors were planned by at least 13 members of the Virginia Beach Art Association.

Eleven of them comprise the show's executive committee chaired by Mrs. C.R. (Patty) Masterson, who has worked with the show since 1962 and was co-chairman last year with Mrs. Florence K. Turner.

Mrs. Gordon Atwill, enters chairman, has held that position at least since the beginning of the 1960's when the show rose to its present prominence in art circles.

Current president of the sponsoring Virginia Beach Art Association is Richard D. Tayloe of Virginia Beach, and Mrs. Turner will succeed him in September. He is an ex-officio member of the executive committee.

Here are others Mrs.

Masterson listed as hard-working chairmen and assistants:

Mrs. J. Douglas Hubard, placement chairman who has worked on the show since its inception and served as co-chairman in 1958.

Mrs. Willard Washburn, Mrs. Masterson's assistant this year.

J. Douglas Hubard, staging chairman and active with the show since 1956.

Edwin H. Barker, assisting Hubard on staging.

Mrs. Charles Fishel, finance chairman.

Mrs. C. Bernard Brown, hospitality chairman.

Cmdr. C. R. Masterson (Ret.), husband of the show chairman, serving as judging chairman this year.

Mrs. Gilmore Lee Tilbrook, secretary.

Mrs. Virginia Ackiss Wilkinson, social chairman.

Mrs. Fishel

Outdoor Drama

The summer months once more offer a full season of open-air drama. In amphitheatres that stretch across the Southeast lands, vacationers can experience this dynamic art.

"The Common Glory," now in its 20th anniversary year, portrays the founding of American Independence. It plays at Lake Mead Amphitheatre in Williamsburg.

"Unto These Hills", about the Cherokee struggle for survival, is produced at the Mountsides Theatre in Cherokee, N.C.

The Mood, Custom Range

The moods and customs of at least a dozen foreign countries are reflected in the art works on display south of 17th Street on the oceanfront.

Boardwalk Art Show Officials, after eyeing the list of exhibitors, said the birthplaces of some artists include Yugoslavia, Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Malaysia, New Zealand, Canada, England, Korea, Czechoslovakia and a number of Latin American nations.

Then there is the variety which the United States offers, with artists at the show from nearly two dozen of the states.

They include New York, Maryland, Missouri, California, Michigan, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Wisconsin, South Carolina, Delaware, Indiana, Florida, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New Jersey, Ohio, Illinois, North Carolina, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia.

Some of the artists are listed in Who's Who in American Art and are members of outstanding art societies.

The Corcoran Gallery in this country, and galleries in Europe, South America, Australia and Canada have works of some artists in the show here.

Some of them also are represented in the Edward G. Robinson and Vincent Price collections.

A broad range of states also has been evident in the selection of show judges through the years.

Museum directors from Baltimore, Atlanta and Columbia, S. C., have picked winners at times.

Editors of internationally-circulated art magazines and artists of national and international prominence also have judged for various shows.

Critics Say 'Careful'

The Metropolitan Museum, the Library of Congress and the Morgan and Rockefeller collections.

Those are only some of the places where some who exhibit in the Boardwalk Art Show are represented.

But not all are artists of such success, and for the average person who wants to brighten the home for the family, there is plenty to choose from.

But art critics say each year a show comes around that the buyer must be discriminating to be pleased with his purchase after it hangs on the wall.

Navy Helps Out

When the Boardwalk Art Show arrives on greater Virginia Beach's oceanfront each year, the U. S. Navy has a hand in it.

Mrs. C. R. Masterson, show chairman this year, said the Navy seldom takes credit for the manpower and equipment it contributes to the show to participate in the community project.

As an example, she said, Navy men put in "a little over 10,000 man hours in staging". The Navy also lends the show moving vans, water coolers, and other equipment as well as providing men "when they are available," she said.

Dreiser Called It 'Honey'

"Art is the stored honey of the human soul, gathered on wings of misery and travail."

American novelist Theodore Dreiser, who died near the end of World War II, expressed that view of art.

There are others who through decades and centuries of the past have tried to explain art and artists.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, American Essayist, wrote that "Every artist was first an amateur."

Dante wrote in "Inferno" that "Art, as far as it is able, follows nature, as a pupil imitates his master; thus your art must be, as it were, God's grandchild."

If an astronaut, or cosmologist of today's space age has tried to explain art and artists, the attempt has received little public notice.

As for the role the city government plays in the show, Mrs. Masterson said "the city gives us the most magnificent cooperation that you can conceivably imagine."

She particularly mentioned the Public Works Department, headed by Charles S. Kiley, and the City Safety Bureau, headed by Reeves

Johnson. "The city gives us financial and material assistance, labor and above all, encouragement," Mrs. Masterson said.

She said Police Chief James E. Moore and Capt. R. C. Davis and Lt. W. J. Moore Jr. of the 2nd Precinct also have been helpful.

Among Other Events

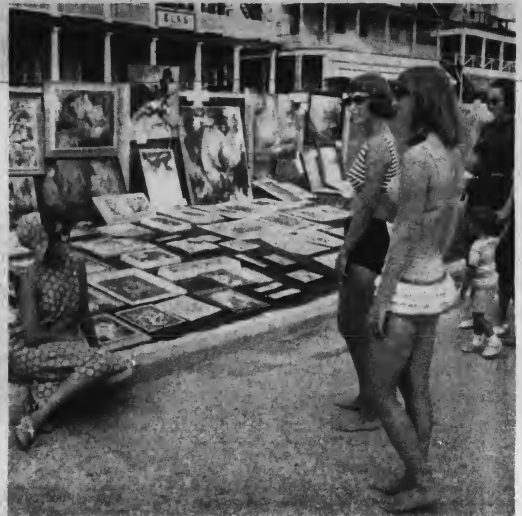

The Boardwalk Art Show is only one of a number of major events scheduled each year in Virginia Beach which focus national attention on the city.

Among the others are:

The annual Lotus Festival, which begins July 19 and goes through July 26 this year, focusing attention on one of the last substantial stands of the native American Lotus in Tabernacle Creek near Sandbridge beach.

The annual Virginia Beach Music Festival, staged on the oceanfront in late June of this year, with high school bands from eight states competing.

The annual Jazz Festival, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Kiwanis Club for the benefit of crippled children. It will be at 8:30 p.m. on July 29 this year at Virginia Beach's Civic Center (the Dome).

Art Displayed Along the Boardwalk Catches the Attention of Sunbathers, as Well as Those Who Come Only to Buy or Mingle with the Crowds. In This Picture, a pair of the Bathing Set Look Over the Paintings of a Florida Artist in an Earlier Show.

What's Stirring in the States?

THE OLD DOMINION--The Southern Regional Conference of Attorneys General met in Williamsburg, Va., and adopted a resolution favoring the election of the top state legal counsel. Virginia has long elected its attorney general. Some southern states are considering constitutional conventions which involve whether state officers should be elected or appointed.

"Tax reform"

THE WOLVERINE STATE--State officials in Lansing, Mich., are lining up the paperwork for a new state personal income tax which becomes effective Oct. 1 at a 2.6 percent rate. Gov. George Romney calls the move a "tax reform." Michigan already has a 4 percent sales tax.

Cities get share

LAND OF LINCOLN--The Republican-controlled legislature in Illinois has passed a bill raising that state's sales tax from 4 to 4 and 3/4 percent. The bill allows municipalities to levy a 1/4 percent sales tax.

Credit bill

WASHINGTON, D. C.--The U. S. House of Representatives is considering what to do with a Truth-in-Lending Bill, recently passed by the U. S. Senate after a seven-year fight. The bill covers auto loans, personal loans, appliance loans, single-payment loans and repair and modernization loans. Revolving-credit transactions would be exempted.

Tough question

EMPIRE STATE (of the North)--Before long-time TV star John Charles Daly takes over as new director of the Voice of America in September, he has a tough question to answer for himself. It is simply, "What's My Line?"

Safety test

GOLDEN STATE--Oral contraceptives will soon be tested in a community near Oakland, Calif., to determine whether the pills are relatively safe. The U. S. Public Health Service plans the 18-month test, in which 11,000 women will participate. It could lead to research on whether there is a relationship between such pills and certain forms of cancer.

Colored Jesus

WATER WONDERLAND--A retail firm in Detroit, Mich., is selling portraits of Christ as a Negro, claiming the ethnic representation makes Christ more personal to the ethnic group.

Local Artists Win Show Prizes

Six artists who live in greater Virginia Beach were in the running for prizes, but only two--Edna Lazaron and George Sanderlin--received notice from the judges at the 12th annual rain-plagued Boardwalk Art Show.

The $1,000 purchase prize of the Virginia Beach Art Association went to James Barbee of Chicago for his oil "Beach Scene No. 3."

Lazaron won the $25 New-castle Award in drawing for "Seated Man," and Sanderlin received an honorable mention for a drawing titled "Light Returning."

Other local artists who had works selected by the show judges for prize competition were:

Cameron Bone-Kemper (2 pieces) and Harriet Goldberg in oils and acrylics; Margaret Etenger in watercolors; Vance Mitchell in mixed media, and George Laakso in sculpture.

The $50 prize for the best sketch of the show in progress went to Barkley Sheaks of Newport News.

Mrs. C.R. Masterson, show chairman, said sales by hundreds of artists in the show were expected to total more than $63,500 by final tally-time this week, a record for the show. The previous high was $61,790 set in 1966.

'Good Girl' Won, Says Miss Beach

"Of course I was disappointed I didn't win, but I'm glad Virginia got a good girl," was the reaction of Lynn Prangley, Miss Virginia Beach, upon returning from the Miss Virginia contest in Roanoke last weekend.

"It was a great chance to meet people," commented Miss Prangley. "The thing I remember most was the city's reception to the girls and the contest."

Miss Virginia Beach, who did not place among the finalists, said she is not sure of her plans for the remainder of the summer, but said she wants to "rest and relax." She will be returning to the University of Colorado in September.

Lynn Prangley

The Sigillo Story

On July 9, 1943, Mary Sigillo and her fiance, Arthur Libre, were arrested in a small town outside Paris in France. Mary was 19, Arthur 20. Their arrest was inevitable. For two years they were part of the vast network of underground workers whose Resistance activities resulted in firing squad deaths for many, imprisonment and torture for many others.

Mary, now married and living here, tells her story for the first time: a story of love, intrigue, courage and, most of all, faith. The second installment appears today on Page 6.

Beach war opens again with adults vs. boppers

The Perennial war between innkeepers and those catering to teenagers has escalated in the boardwalk area of greater Virginia Beach this summer, and a professional football player who lives in the city is fueling the battle.

The surfboard set's numbers are being sharply cut by the Vietnam conflict, much to the displeasure of some surfboard promoters. Attention is now on non-alcoholic clubs, with growing emphasis on "hometown" youngsters.

some motel interests in the area objected, Torok obtained a "temporary" 30-day permit from City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

The Virginia Beach Innkeepers bounced back with a lawsuit in Virginia Beach Circuit Court, seeking to have the permit revoked. The innkeepers represent part of a $22 million annual tourist business.

After a preliminary legal round before Judge Richard B. Kellam, last week, the judge decided the city legally has until Aug. 3 to answer the suit before it can be tried on its merits. The innkeepers said they only oppose the club's location.

The location of Torok's teenage club is next door to the Saxony Motel, owned by Nick Koestopolous, an aide to Vice President Hubert Humphrey. Koestopolous recently came home to try and smooth out differences.

The Virginia Beach Innkeepers, headed by George Davis, appear to be fighting once more the war to keep the resort area in the summer a "family beach." Meanwhile, some ministers and parents support Torok's non-alcoholic venture.

The stockholders of The Sand-box reportedly are John J. Marshall Jr., Joyce M. Marshall, and R.L. and Eleanor Smouse, all of greater Virginia Beach.

Promotion by the Virginia Beach city government and private interests for years have aimed at developing the resort strip along Atlantic Avenue into "family beach," and vacationers come from far and near.

This trend may continue, with the Vietnam War drawing the college-age unattached beer drinkers away from home, leaving the high-school age levels the primary concern.

The surfboard craze, however, and a growing number of teen-age and young people's dance spots have alarmed the motel and hotel operators in recent years.

Ted Torok, a member of the Norfolk Neptunes football team, recently opened a nightclub The Sandbox, for teenagers in what once was the Sherwood Lounge. He failed initially to get a city permit, however, and although

Barrie Shifts Squadrons

Cmdr. Glenn E. Kollman has assumed command of Attack Squadron 35, an NAS Oceana-based squadron which recently returned from Vietnam.

Kollman relieved Cmdr. Arthur H. Barrie, who will take command of Attack Squadron 42 at NAS Oceana Aug. 1, a Navy spokesman said.

Beach GOP Fields Five for Campaign

The click of voting machines had barely ended for the Democratic Primary in greater Virginia Beach when the Republicans tossed five hats into the campaign ring for the November general election.

Kellam retained a majority on the City Democratic Committee.

Seeing an opportunity to capitalize on any after-primary hard feelings, members of the City Republican Committee met election eve and named these contenders:

David R. Smithson Jr., 36, a salesman with U. S. Plywood who lives on Manatee Drive, Woodstock, to oppose the Democrats' John Fentress for circuit court clerk.

John Field, 29, an attorney who lives on Thalia Drive in Thalia, and H. F. Clark, 49, a stockbroker with First Investors who lives on Presidential Boulevard, Windsor Woods, candidates for the House of Delegates. (Their Democratic opponents are Kenneth N. Whitehurst Jr. and B. R. Middleton.)

Israel Stengel, 63, a Norfolk lawyer who lives on Windward Shore Drive, Bay Island, to oppose the Democrats' Andre Evans for commonwealth's attorney.

Charles E. Richardson, 37, a superintendent with Associated Naval Architects in Portsmouth who lives on Big Pine Drive, Malibu, to run for city sergeant against the Democrats' John E. Marr.

Marr also is expected to have opposition from Joseph Dreano, a Pembroke Manor man who announced some time ago as "Independent."

The Republicans are not challenging five Democratic nominees--Del. E. T. Caton III of greater Virginia Beach, State Sen. William H. Hodges of Chesapeake and Del. Willard Moody of Portsmouth for the state senate; City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge, and Revenue Commissioner Ivan D. Mapp.

Martin A. Trenkle, chairman of the City Republican Committee, said a headquarters would be opened "within the week," and the GOP will work on voter registration and identification until early September.

City leads state in construction

Building permit values in greater Virginia Beach thus far this year have put the city in the lead among Virginia cities, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

Values on Virginia Beach permits totaled $21.5 through June. Values in Norfolk, second in the state, totaled $20.7 million. The figures do not include federal construction.

Coming Up

Virginia Beach City Council will meet at 10 a.m. Monday, July 24, for its second regular meeting of the month in the Circuit Court building at Princess Anne Court House.

The Broad Bay Sailing Association plans a cookout at The Narrows at 5 p.m. Saturday, July 22, before a Moonlight Sail starting at 7 p.m., weather permitting.

The Virginia Beach Recreation Commission will meet at 3 p.m. Tuesday, July 25, at the Public School Administration building at Princess Anne Court House.

A demonstration in fencing will be presented at 1, 2 and 3 p.m. Saturday, July 22, on the center mall stage at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center by representatives of the John Robert Powers Fashion and Finishing School.

Navy Is a Tradition In the Mustin Family

The man who heads the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, based at the Naval Amphibious Base in greater Virginia Beach, was literally born into the Navy—at the Philadelphia Navy Yard 56 years ago.

Vice Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin's father was a pioneer in Naval aviation; his great-grandfather commanded one of Commodore Matthew C. Perry's ships which opened trade with Japan in 1853 and his great-great-grandfather commanded the U.S. Naval Squadron on Lake Ontario in the War of 1812.

Mustin became Atlantic fleet amphibious boss in May of this year after serving as director of operations, J-3, Joint Staff, Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington, D.C.

Since his graduation from the Naval Academy in 1932, he has commanded the destroyer USS Keppeler, destroyer tender USS Piedmont, Destroyer Squadron 13, Destroyer Flotilla Two, the Key West Naval Base in Florida and Joint Task Force Eight.

When World War II broke out in 1941, he was a lieutenant and assistant gunnery officer of the USS Atlanta, later sunk during the battle of Guadalcanal in November of 1942. After he and other survivors landed on that Pacific island, they fought for three months with the First Marine Division on land.

Mustin's role in the nuclear-age Navy has included command of Task Force 88, a special force organized to plan and conduct the Argus high-altitude nuclear tests fired in the remote South Atlantic, and command of Joint Task Force Eight.

In the later position for nearly two years (November of 1962 into the summer of 1964), he conducted the remaining Dominant nuclear tests and planned future tests.

The name Mustin is particularly familiar to the destroyer and air arms of the Navy because the destroyer USS Mustin and the Naval Air Field at Philadelphia were named after Mustin's father.

His wife is the former Miss Emily Proctor Morton of Annapolis, Md., and they have two sons continuing the family's Naval tradition—Lt. Cmdr. Henry C. Mustin and Lt. Thomas Morton Mustin.

Lt. Mustin is on his way to duty with river patrol boats in the Mekong Delta, Vietnam. Lt. Cmdr. Mustin is aide to Adm. U.S. C. Sharp, Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet.

A daughter is married to L.C. Balauf Jr., who recently resigned from the Navy after rising to lieutenant commander. They are in California.

Miss Robertson Teacher Interested In Retarded

A teacher with a special interest in teaching art to retarded children is now serving in a new position as an assistant art co-ordinator for the Virginia Beach public schools.

A native of Roanoke, Miss Wanda Lea Robertson is a graduate of Longwood College where she received a bachelor of science degree in secondary education and majored in art.

She has taught at Cox High School since September, 1964. Besides regular art classes she worked with a special education class for two years.

Last summer Miss Robertson was an arts and crafts instructor at the Roanoke Day Camp for Retarded Children.

She was one of two assistant art co-ordinators appointed last spring. Mrs. Inez Wilson, who has taught at Union-Kempville High School, is the second. They will work with Mrs. Gail Presson, art co-ordinator, in co-ordinating activities in the school system and bringing teachers information about the teaching materials.

Six Councilmen Win Seats On City Demo. Committee

Six city councilmen who ran for City Democratic Committee posts on the Administration Team in the July 12 Democratic primary finished as winners.

Bayside voters chose Councilmen Lawrence E. Marshall and Robert B. Cromwell Jr. to the committee along with 13 other residents of Bayside Borough. Virginia Beach Borough voters picked Mayor Frank A. Dusch and Councilman John W. McCombs, ex-councilmen Frank Tarrall and W. H. Kitchen and eight other committee members.

Kempville Borough voters elected Councilman George R. Ferrell among 14 committee members from that borough, and Blackwater voters chose Councilman Earl N. Tebault over a former councilman, James E. Snyder.

In heavily-populated Lynnhaven borough, voters flipped enough levers for Clyde C. Absalom to lead voting on committee posts in that borough, although his son, Richard R. Absalom, lost in his bid for the court clerk nomination.

On a geographic basis, Lynnhaven voters picked United candidates 19 to 1 over Administration; Kempville picked Administration 12 to 2; Bayside picked United 8 to 7; Virginia Beach Borough picked Administration 11 to 1; Princess Anne picked Administration 9 to 0 and Blackwater elected two Administration men, none for the Uniteds.

The sum of the committee voting gave Administration forces a 46 to 30 edge over the Uniteds on the City Democratic Committee, including four Pungo committee posts which were not contested by the Uniteds.

Here are the official vote counts for each committee candidate:

Lynnhaven—Winners are United except as noted—Clyde C. Absalom, 4167; C. W. Cashman Jr., 3879; Otis C. Darden, 3872; Melvin J. Grimstead, 3841; Irvin C. Evans Sr., 3736; Mammie F. tip

The Nantucket pine tip moth is again killing the tips of young pine trees throughout the State.

The insect, commonly called the tip moth, inflicts its greatest damage on loblolly and short-leaf pines.

The larvae of the insect do the damage as they bore into buds, shoots and young stems. Several successive generations of tip moths can occur during a year.

In general, the ability of a tree to recover after the tips have been killed depends on the tree's vigor. When tree vigor is high, new buds are produced and the tree recovers. When tree vigor is low, the uppermost branches may compete for dominance, and the result is a forked or crooked stem tree.

Generally, the better suited a tree is to the site on which it grows, the less severe the damage is.

There's no practical method for control of this insect on a large scale at the present time. Effective control can be obtained by spraying with insecticides, but this is rather expensive. Researchers are working on breeding trees that will resist tip moth damage, in addition to studying biological control agents.

If you have relatively small trees in the landscape that are affected by these, a spray program using DDT will generally give effective control.

Sandfiddlers float away with prize

The Virginia Beach Sandfiddlers--the camping kind, not the genus beatus--literally floated to happiness at Prince Gallitzin State Park near Altoona, Pa.

A tent-trailer float, which the local Sandfiddlers entered in competition at a meeting of the National Campers and Hikers Association last week at the park, won the award for the "most elaborate chapter float."

Warren Eugley of Aragona Village heads the local chapter which goes by the name of Sandfiddlers. The group's float featured the Cape Henry Lighthouse and the Cape Henry Cross.

$7million in bond issues last fall.

Evan McCorkle, Jr., architect for the Welfare Building, said it is scheduled for completion by February and will house public welfare offices now in one-story building at the Municipal Center. Total cost is estimated near $250,000.

Scheduled for a bid opening in late August is the largest building for the Municipal Center--a two-story Administration Building which will serve as the new City Hall. It will have a City Council chamber, offices for the city manager, mayor, and a number of departments.

The architect is John Walker, and the cost is estimated near $1 million. Walker said the bid opening is scheduled for Aug. 31, and construction will take about one year.

Lady Mayor Boosts Police

Mrs. Ann H. Kilgore, mayor of Hampton, Va., recently presented to the Hampton Roads Committee on Areawide Cooperation a proposal for a Tidewater Police Academy. (See Sun Report on this page.)

She is one of the few women in public offices in Virginia and has a knack for stating the case quite well, as cities search for ways to improve the lot of policemen and respect for law enforcement.

Police officers in our city and in other communities in Hampton Roads are now trained locally on a limited basis, sent to various national and regional academies (FBI included) for advanced training.

It is the "local training which the academy program would pull together on a cooperative basis at the outset. It eventually would train high school graduates with good police potential.

The academy proposal, in effect, is a proposal that one be created at Old Dominion College in Norfolk.

When discussing it, Mrs. Kilgore said the academy would promote efficiency in police departments. We are all for that, since any public agency can be improved.

By the end of this month, or early next month, the governing bodies of Virginia Beach and other Hampton Roads communities may decide to accept, or table the proposal.

We believe it is worth serious consideration.

After the Fight

The Democratic primary fight in greater Virginia Beach is over now, and appraisals of the outcome have been about as varied as the candidates which voters chose to carry the party flag in the forthcoming November election.

We do not pretend to be as wise or sagacious as some newspaper folk outside of our city, but we do know any hot election improves government and brings it closer to the people.

In this case, perhaps the greatest improvement was in the voter turnout—a record 22,713 for local-state election. This shows a strong interest in good government.

Candidates on both the Administration and United sides took the campaign position greater Virginia Beach should remain independent, but cooperate with our neighboring cities on regional matters. We expect them to stand on that position.

The defeat at the polls of State Sen. William P. Keilam for one of three 3rd Senatorial District seats was a shock to some, a joy to others. It is one of the breaks of the game in politics. Mr. Keilam undoubtedly will continue his committee work for the House of Delegates through this year, and continue working for a better Virginia Beach.

Other losers in the balloting did their best, and they could figure in future primaries. Particularly, such young men as Joseph A. Gawrys, Richard Absalom, Owen B. Pickett, Howard E. Merrill and Paul Sutton.

For the moment, however, more attention is on the victors.

Del. E.T. Caton III, Del. Willard H. Moody and State Sen. William H. Hodges are the State Senate nominees. Kenneth N. Whitehurst and B.R. Middleton are House of Delegates nominees.

City Treasurer V.A. Etheridge won the nod to seek that post again, and Court Clerk John V. Fentress, Revenue Commissioner Ivan Mapp and City Sergeant John Marr are set for re-election bids in November.

Andre Evans, nominee for Commonwealth's Attorney, already is facing Republican opposition in November. So are others, including Marr, Whitehurst, Middleton and Fentress.

Marr also faces opposition from an independent, Joseph Dreano, according to last reports.

With the GOP at the starting lines, the somewhat-fagged Democratic candidates would be wise to try and smooth out any differences and do what Sen. Keilam said he will do. He said on election night that he will support all of the Democratic nominees.

Further division now is not only bad for the Democrats, but also dangerous for our city and its bright future.

Such campaign workers as Rhae Adams, Dan Arris and Reid Ervin, R.R. McChesney, Richard Guy and Lawrence Marshall—to mention a few—could make it rough for the GOP.

A 'Credibility Gap'?

A number of "news" accounts in a morning newspaper in the greater Virginia Beach area of late have caused confusion and concern among various persons in the city.

Those familiar with what is happening have concluded that the writer, identified in by-lines as Morris Rowe, does not know what is going on in Virginia Beach, perhaps because of his short time in the city.

Is there a widening "credibility gap" in some segments of the press?

Letters to the Editor

Methods, Tactics

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regards to the methods and tactics used by the Kellam machine workers in the recent July 11 Democratic primary election, where despite all these efforts they suffered a stunning defeat.

An effort was made at London Bridge precinct to dump Mr. Willard Moody, candidate for state senate from Portsmouth, by the Kellam precinct workers, who were handing voters guide ballots with instructions to vote for only two State Senators, Mr.

Kellam and Mr. Hodges, and the voting machines clearly stated to vote for three Senators.

In Portsmouth, Mr. George McLean had Mr. Edward Caton's campaign signs removed from property without cause and this was quickly brought to the proper authorities' attention, but it shows the methods and tactics used by a machine that considers winning in politics regardless of what methods are used. I feel that even the most ardent Kellam supporters will have to agree that human decency and fair play will bring greater rewards than the above methods, and the results were proved since Mr. Kellam suffered a humiliating defeat in this primary and will continue to be defeated in his political efforts if such dirty tactics and methods are used by the Kellam workers.

Mrs. Alberta Harper

Kellam family has accomplished for Virginia Beach, including what was old Princess Anne County.

All of us honestly hope Senator Kellam will not give up his interest in our magnificent city's future. If I had realized Portsmouth was out to get him, as the press noted, I would have been more strenuous in his behalf.

I am not ashamed to say I also supported Mr. Moody, and I honestly do hope that he is gentleman enough to look out for Virginia Beach. I know Sen. Hodges will.

Kellam Known as Just, But Also Tough Judge

When the Virginia Beach and Norfolk-Portsmouth bar associations endorsed Judge Richard Boykin Kellam for a federal judgeship more than a year ago, the fur began flying.

The 58-year-old judge of Virginia Beach Circuit Court soon came under attack from some segments of the press, a few Republicans and long-time enemies of the prominent Kellam family. Others defended him, including some local Republican lawyers.

At the time, Judge Kellam's greatest liability in federal judgeship consideration seemed to be his brother Sidney's role as Democratic National Committeeman for Virginia.

President Lyndon Johnson has now nominated Kellam for one of three federal judgeships in Virginia's Eastern District. The other two nominees are John Ashton MacKenzie of Portsmouth and Robert R. Merhige Jr. of Richmond.

Judge Kellam is to some criminal lawyers what is known as a "hanging judge." This means he can be tough on their clients. But as the initial endorsement resolutions of the area bar associations indicated, the legal profession in this area holds him in high regard as a "just" judge.

Judge Kellam

He does not have a degree from a school of law, yet the area bar and the American Bar Association credit him with having unusually broad knowledge of the law and its application.

As for himself, Judge Kellam contends he decides cases on the basis of "what I think is right" after considering the legal aspects. When a newsman asked him more than a year ago about the controversy over his probably federal appointment, he grinned politely and shrugged it off.

Judge Kellam was educated in former Princess Anne County's public schools, attended Davis Wagner Business College and went to work with a brother's law firm in 1927—that of the late Judge Floyd E. Kellam.

After he studied law in the office and at night classes in Norfolk for six years, he was admitted to the bar in 1933. He went into a law partnership with Floyd E. Kellam Sr., later served in England, France, and Germany during World War II.

He became junior judge of the 28th Judicial Circuit in June of 1960. The circuit then included Isle of Wight County as well as what today is greater Virginia Beach.

Robert S. Wahab is senior judge of Virginia Beach Circuit Court. A third judge is Paul W. Ackiss, appointed at the beginning of this year because of a heavy caseload.

Judge Kellam, his wife, Alice and their three children live in an imposing white frame home on a hill at Princess Anne Court House, where the Kellam family was raised.

Sun Report

Group Studies Police Academy

This Sun Report offers readers a glimpse at the problems facing Virginia Beach and neighboring communities on law enforcement and one proposal to solve them. Here are excerpts from a report presented to the Hampton Roads Committee on Areawide Cooperation by a subcommittee, headed by Mayor Ann H. Kilgore of Hampton, on July 12:

"In the spring of 1966, the Areawide Cooperation Committee moved to appoint a sub-committee to study the feasibility of establishing a Tidewater Police Academy. . . .

"The committee has met several times during this year, and in addition to these meetings, we have met in consultation with faculty members from Old Dominion College, and with Mr. Charles Cusick and Mr. Henry Drummond of the F. B. I. in Norfolk.

"Old Dominion College was asked by the committee to make a proposal for the academy. After the submission of this proposal, we held two meetings with the City Managers and Police Chiefs from all members of the Areawide group. The majority of them approved the plans as submitted.

"As proposed by Old Dominion College, the Tidewater Police Academy would be a part of the Community College of Old Dominion and administered under Dean Koverer and Mr. Spector. It would be divided into three categories:

The Cadet Academy

"This academy would enroll boys upon graduation from high school, and offer training and courses leading to the Associate of Arts degree in law enforcement. Further recommendations for this academy are awaiting a study by Mr. Spector, who has received a grant to visit police academies across the United States in order to make a broader recommendation to us.

The Recruit Academy

This academy is intended for men 21 years of age or older who are new recruits to local departments. At the present time, each Police Division offers a complete recruit course which often, because of a limited number of new men, cannot be held for many months after a man enters employment. These recruits will be sent to old Dominion College for a recruit course following a curriculum prepared by the college, which we are enclosing. This, as you can see, is a proposed curriculum and may be revised as the localities so desire. At our last meeting, all localities accepted this curriculum as satisfactory, except for the City of Portsmouth (which did not have its regular member present), and the City of Newport News (with its Police Chief stating that he would need more time to study before he could accept it).

"The committee and Old Dominion College would like very much to see the recruit classes start in the fall of 1967 and to be offered approximately every eight (8) weeks. The cost per man would be approximately $100.00, and we believe that we can get some aid from the State in the next session of the General Assembly to aid in this instructional cost.

In-Service Training Schools

"These classes can be offered by the college upon request of the localities and can be developed following their suggestions.

"We have found that almost without exception, Police Chiefs, Deputy Chiefs, Training Officers and City Managers feel that the academy is a necessity in Tidewater if we are to maintain and improve our law enforcement agencies of local government. In the President's Crime Commission Report, higher education is stressed consistently to improve the Police Officer's image of himself and to gain greater respect from the public.

"We believe that the Recruit Academy is the place to start in September of 1967 and, hopefully, to establish the Cadet Academy for the fall of 1968. We are reasonably sure of being able to obtain Federal and State aid for this cause. Since we are making a beginning locally, we should be in good standing for financial assistance.

"It is suggested that an Advisory Committee for the Tidewater Police Academy be appointed with representatives from each of the participating subdivisions to serve, and that this committee be named as soon as localities approve the plan.

The "Innocent" Bystander

It may be some time before the American people learn the true story of why Israeli planes and ships attacked the USS Liberty, an unarmed ship flying the U.S. flag in international waters. They will very much want to know why the armed forces of a nation which this country befriended from its very beginning should attack the sitting duck which was the Liberty.

According to the Insider's Newsletter, there is said to exist a recording of an Israeli radio conversation discussing the Liberty's American flag. According to this report the Liberty had been stationed in hazardous waters to intercept Arab and Israeli messages and high-security directional-beam messages.

The newsletter says that experts believe that the Israelis did not want any other power to have a record of its war communications and had attacked the Liberty to drive it away. This report explains that if the Israelis had really believed the ship to be an enemy ship they could and would have sent it to the bottom.

This theory leaves the Israelis in a half-way position. A less bloody aerial attack surely would have been enough to drive the Liberty back away from the closeup eavesdropping area. On the other hand, a real case of wrong identification surely would have ended with the Liberty on the bottom of the Mediterranean. The slaughter was much too much for a warning for erstwhile benefactor Uncle Sam. It was not enough for a ship thought to be an enemy. What happened, Why?

Fast-Food Business Increases

New eating places, particularly of the quickie-bite variety, are growing more popular in greater Virginia Beach, along with the dining-out restaurants.

"Butty's" recently opened on the north side of Virginia Beach Boulevard, between Aragona and Pembroke Mall shopping centers. William P. McInure is co-owner and manager, and the eatery serves fried chicken as well as the "Mighty Buff Burger" with a special sauce.

Off First Colonial Road at Hilltop, about five miles east of Pembroke, a new fried-chicken business will soon open. It is another outlet for Kentucky Fried Chicken, Col. Sanders' style.

Among relatively new restaurants is the Road Runner--a touch of Texas--on Virginia Beach Boulevard near the oceanfront. But more established eating places, such as the Black Angus, Freddy's, Hard's and the Jade Pagoda are keeping up with the competition.

$31,000 P.O. By Nov. 1

A $31,000 permanent building for the Back Bay postal station is expected to be ready for use by Nov. 1, according to U.S. Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien.

O'Brien recently announced that a contract for building and leasing the new structure has been awarded to Knox J. and Mary P. Wolaver and C.G. and Bernice B. White, all of Knotts Island, N.C.

The building on Princess Anne Road at North Stowe Road will be leased by the U.S. Post Office Department for nine years, with 9-year renewal options. It will have 1,782 square feet of floor space.

Bank Promotes John Zimmerman

Seaboard Citizens National Bank has promoted John G. Zimmerman of Lobaugh Drive, Virginia Beach, to a vice presidency.

The bank's board also recently elevated Joseph B. Murden Jr. of Norfolk to a similar position and named Harry B. Gibson of Norfolk assistant cashier. Zimmerman and Murden are at Seaboard's main office, and Gibson is at the Little Creek branch in Virginia Beach.

First Colony Is Installing Equipment

Telephone equipment costing about $1.6 million is being installed in the First Colony telephone building now under construction on Kempsville Road at Princess Anne Court House.

First Colony, a subsidiary of Continental Telephone Co. of St. Louis, was known as Princess Anne Telephone Co. before January, 1967. It will provide telephones for about half the total area of Virginia Beach.

Telephones in Virginia Beach are divided between First Colony and the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia. First Colony serves Sandbridge, Pungo, Knotts Island, Princess Anne Court House, Dam Neck, and the southern part of Princess Anne Plaza.

"In fact, the dividing line runs right through one of the apartment buildings in Princess Anne Plaza," remarked Bob Turner, manager of First Colony. "We literally flipped a coin with C & P to decide who would serve it." He said division lines were set long before the Plaza area was developed.

Dial equipment for the office is being brought here from Northern Electric in Canada. The system is called Number 5 Crossbar, Turner said, and will be the first installed in an independent telephone company in the United States. First Colony will be the first phone system in this country with all touch tone and single-party phones, according to Turner. Presently, First Colony customers have four-party lines and conventional telephones.

The building is constructed to house equipment for 14,000 private telephone lines without adding to it, according to Steve Halverson, project manager. First Colony has about 3,000 customers and is presently installing equipment to handle up to 5,000. Growth will determine further equipment installation.

Total cost of the building, telephones, switchboard, and outside cables is expected to be about $3 1/2 million. Construction began in October, 1966.

Thousands of Wires Run into Each of Many Units Such as This One to Form the New Dial Telephone System Being Installed by First Colony Telephone Co. Here Robert Turner, Manager, Checks over the New Equipment. (Sun Photo)

The building is styled after the Governor's Palace at Williamsburg and will include a formal garden behind the building. The early American theme will be carried out in the furniture in the business office. Also planned are cobblestone driveways. The building was designed to match the colonial theme of the Virginia Beach Municipal Center at the Court House near the center of greater Virginia Beach.

Telephone men will begin installing new phones in homes sometime in October, Turner said, and the business office will be occupied at Princess Anne in October.

However, the office will not be formally opened until January, 1968, when the switchboard installation will be completed. The present office at Pungo will remain open there for the payment of bills. The new First Colonial system will have 427 prefixes on its numbers. They are now 426.

Continental Telephone Co. has about 15 exchanges serving approximately one million people in Virginia, Turner said.

Look at What's Happening!

White wool gabardine is made to trace a graceful figure. By Junior Sophisticates. Shoes are by Herbert Levine.

Horizontally-striped dress in copper and gold has ballooned sleeves, front A-line, and low back with a full gathered panel. An example of the pretty look by Lee Claire. Shoes by Andrew Geller.

In New York they're wearing short, short dresses, lacy, mesh hose, broad-toed shoes. And, according to predictions, they'll do more of the same for fall and winter.

It's show-and-tell time in New York, the time for American designers to show their latest and time for the American fashion press to tell it to the world.

So, turn up the hems another inch or so (though you may have already turned them up once or even twice since spring), if you must wear hose make it obvious by wearing mesh, and put your best foot forward in a lower-heeled shoe.

The herringbone wool dress by Leo Narducci marks the natural waistline with emphasis. Shoes by Julianelli.

Bob Smith melts when a newly-bathed baby is put in his arms. That's a scent, Bob feels that is unequalled. And, he added, if that baby puts his two itty-bitty hands up to Bob's face...well...that's a sensation indescribable.

Another big bruiser here in the Sun building is Brian Glover whose bailiwick is the job shop where outside printing is done. Brian's favorite fragrances are a little more natural: he succumbs to the smell of the woods. It reminds him of squirrel hunting.

"There've been times," Brian said, "when I'd be so taken with the woods all around me and its smells that I'd find myself forgetting squirrels completely. Sometimes I'd even let 'em get away."

"One smell I don't like" (and this came as a great shock to me because Brian and his friends frequently have day-long barbecues that start around four in the morning) "is a pig roasting. I don't like that because it makes me think how fat I'm going to get when that pig is cooked and I start eating."

Betty Boss, our receptionist, spoke up to say that freshly-baked bread is her weakness.

"I can remember my mother and my grandmother making it. I can also recall a bakery in Brooklyn where my mother bought French bread. It had a hunk of dough on the end of it like a knot, which she'd always break off and give to me."

Hazel Ware will reach for a lilac instead of a gardenia every time.

"I can remember when I was young in Kansas. May Day (May 1) was almost as important a day for us as Christmas. We'd make May baskets out of wallpaper samples, fill them with lilacs and hang them on friends' doors. Our lilac bushes must have been 10 feet across. Everyone had them, but my mother's were the best in the neighborhood."

The younger members of the Sun family don't share our fragrant remembrances of things past.

One, Sally Palmer, likes the smell of spaghetti...for no reason other than the fact that she likes to eat it; a production man named Bo Phillips likes the go-go smell of gasoline. And another, Renee Michaels, still in her teens, is partial to the smell of housework...because it means it's summer."

Give 'em a few years though. They'll be closing their dewy eyes sniffing things like surfing wax, computer tapes, motorcycle fumes...recalling those great old days...the Psychedelic Sixties.

where people are from. Therefore, I established a dialect of my own, so people would not know where I came from.

From this place I was taken to a small town nearby where I lived and worked with Jean and his wife (Jean was later arrested and executed). I continued working on the newspaper; Jean's wife worked with me.

The paper was a great morale booster. A lot of the underground workers were really down and out at that time. It was a horrible time. People were starving. For money, people would do anything. The Gestapo would pay anything. The Gestapo would pay money...any amount...for any kind of information on underground activities or of Jews. You could never be certain to whom you were talking, we had to be very, very careful. It is not only your own life you take in your hands if you talk to the wrong person, but also the lives of the people who were good enough to hide you.

I stayed with Jean's wife and worked with Jean's wife for quite some time, but then I was

Viles-Brown Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil D. Viles of Eastern Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Vickie Diane, to Wayne Thomas Brown.

Mr. Brown is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Brown, also of Virginia Beach.

Miss Viles is a rising senior at First Colonial High School.

Her fiancé attended Kellam High School and is now employed by an electrical contractor.

No date has been set for the wedding.

transferred to Antwerp.

There I stayed with people who had cut out a place in the wall of a second floor bedroom where my typewriter was hidden. You must remember it was hard, being away from home. You can't talk to anybody...you can't even go to confession because you just don't know.

Desperate for someone to talk to, one day I went to a convent. I asked Mother Superior if I can talk to her. All I wanted to do was to hear some kind words.

Meanwhile, I discovered that they day after I left home, Monday, the Germans were there. They came for me. My mother was beaten, left lying upstairs on the floor. She could hear her son, my brother, being beaten downstairs.

At about this time, we were starting to hear about the torture camps...we heard more and more about how badly people were treated there.

I still saw Arthur about once a month. He was really working very hard in sabotage...in the French section of Belgium, mostly. Among our duties was to get information on underground train tunnels...their depth, dimensions, etc...information we would pass on to England and to the RAF so they would know exactly where to drop the bombs. And we watched constantly for shot down planes. We would wait until we were sure we could go to the place where the parachute fell and drag the pilot to safety.

and drag the pilot to safety. We would hide him, feed him, hope to save him.

Being young, doing what we were doing, what you believe, you don't fear danger. You are young and you want to help. If there is a human being you want to help.

You don't stay too long in one place, ever. Soon, I left this house and was paid money to rent a room. It was a little cubbyhole on a third floor. I stayed there, leaving the room just to meet my contact.

One time I didn't meet my contact. I was to meet him at a church but when I got there no one was there. I waited for about five minutes then I went into the church but no one was there. I was at a loss. I didn't know where to go. I didn't know what to do. I had no money. Finally I went to the priest's house and I slept there. I told him that I was not running from authorities. He asked me some questions but I didn't want to answer. He understood.

The following day I decided to go to the railroad station and it was like a miracle happened. I had lost my contact but I spotted someone I knew waiting for the train. I could have kissed him. I told him I'd lost my contact that I was to meet the night before and he said that the contact had been arrested. He gave me money and I got on the train and went to Brussels.

I stayed and worked in Brussels. I saw Arthur one time. We went to a movie. You couldn't go many places because you never knew when the Gestapo would walk in and haul out all the young people and send them to Germany. That was done so very much. Wherever you went, you had to come off the streets during the day because you never knew when you would be stopped and asked for your passport.

Again I was moved, this time to live in the home of a lady who was an opera singer. A Jewish boy was assigned to her, also. He posed as an accountant and as an artist. He did tremendous paintings, so he would sit at the window, painting, but all the time he is making a picture of the back of the prison.

I was transferred again and again because, I was told, I was being watched too closely. I was sent to Leuze, which is in France, where I joined the FFI (Free French Independents) and moved back and forth from Belgium to France.

Then one of our underground workers shot and killed a German soldier.

The group had been assigned to derail a railroad train...to prevent the train from moving from one destination to another.

The way they would work it was they would watch closely and know at what time the German patrol would be walking back and forth. They, the Germans, had a certain distance to walk, a certain point where they would pass each other. But this time, our timing was off, because while they were derailing the train, the Germans noticed them and shot one of the underground men.

The underground men all scattered and didn't know until they came to their place of rendezvous later that Gene was the boy who had been shot because he was not at the meeting. With this we knew that we had to get instructions which we got from Arthur's chief. His name was Frederick.

It was then close to two years in underground service and getting a little bit hot. We felt that maybe it would be best if we could get ourselves further into France and to Portugal, eventually to try to get to England.

The FFI had worked fast. We went to Paris, received assignments and false passports. The FFI felt that we should definitely try to get to Portugal and they cooperated with us but of course, it takes time to get all of this straightened out.

We returned from Paris. This trip had taken us about two days. We were staying at Arthur's grandfather's house.

On Friday morning, July 9, 1943, around 4 a.m. I could hear all of this commotion. I went to the window...I was downstairs...and I saw trucks filled with Gestapo. To reach Arthur upstairs, I had to go through his grandfather's room. I went over to him and I said to him, Papa, the Germans are here.

Kempsville Colt All-Stars Play; Lynnhaven Primes for Tourney

While the Kempsville Colt League all-stars moved into tournament action this week, the Lynnhaven Colt squad prepared to play host to teams from at least five states for the Southeastern Regional tournament starting Aug. 1 at Trant Memorial Field here.

As host, the Lynnhaven Colt drew a bye in area and state tournaments. Kempsville, however, had to play and work its way up in an area tourney which started Wednesday of this week in Chesapeake.

Navy to Use New Numbers

The Navy has issued a reminder that the new Centex (Central Exchange) telephone system for the Naval Amphibious Base, in the northwest corner of greater Virginia Beach, will be ready for use on Saturday, Aug. 5.

After that date, persons calling from off the base will be able to dial direct to base extensions, as listed in the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia's May 28, 1967, area directory. The prefix number listed is 464, that for other areas in northwest Virginia Beach.

Thalia Tiny Tigers Win Soccer Title

The Thalia Tiny Tigers, one of the city's 13 soccer teams of teenagers 11 to 14 years of age, were undefeated in play and won the City Championship, which was held recently, with a 6-0 record.

Det Whitlow is managing the Kempsville all-stars after leading his team, the Lions, to the league crown last week with a 3-2 win over the Aragona Moose. Nickie Dunston is all-star coach.

Tony Amato is managing the Lynnhaven Colt team, and Monte Howell is coach. Amato's Reds captured the league championship with a 6-5 victory over the Orioles last week.

Here are all star players for both the Lynnhaven and Kempsville Colts, and some of them will be starting in high school baseball during the next year or two.

Table Tennis Attracts 81

A city-wide table tennis tournament recently drew 81 youngsters from 24 elementary playgrounds through the city.

The competition was held at Bayside High School and those who competed were winners of tournaments at their individual playgrounds.

Girls - 12 and 13: winner Terri Sawyer, Plaza; runner-up Adrienne Harrington, Thoroughgood.

Amphib Base Schedules All-Star Game

The American and National league all stars of the U.S. Naval Amphibious Base begin tournament play at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 20, at the base.

The Amphib American League All-Star team is managed by J.D. Smith and coached by W.B. Wood. Officials of the National League did not announce their team to the local press.

Here are the American league All Stars:

DAV Chapters Plan Installation

Five chapters of the Disabled American Veterans, including Virginia Beach Chapter No. 20, will have a joint installation banquet for the first time on Saturday, July 22.

The banquet will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Chapter No. 4 building on Ingleside Road in Norfolk.

Macon N. Salter is succeeding Ray D. Cope as senior commander of Chapter 20. Other officers of the six-year-old chapter are Roy L. Hall, senior vice commander; Willard Ackiss, junior vice commander; Herman Allen, treasurer; Lee Ferguson, chaplain; William Fluty, adjutant; and C. Elmer Lang, service officer. Cope will become a member of the executive board.

The other chapters and their senior commanders include No. 4 of Norfolk, Alan Davis; No. 6 of Hampton, Tommy Mitchell; and No. 28 of Chesapeake, Warren Waters. The fifth chapter is No. 21 of Norfolk.

Cope said officers for a new ladies auxiliary for Chapter No. 20 will be installed at the banquet. The banquet speaker will be Sidney M. Oman of Great Bridge and the topic is "Americanism."

Among invited guests are John Barriore, past president of the Tidewater Veterans Association; Richard W. Barnes, Roy R. Prangle and State Sen. William P. Kellam and their wives; Lynn Prangle, Miss Virginia Beach; Mrs. Frances Mizell of Chesapeake and Miss Frances Darman of Roanoke.

Teacher Goes To Institute

Lois E. Griffin, of 63rd Street is among 46 secondary school teachers from 16 states who are attending a six week Summer Institute in Mathematics for High School Teachers at Lehigh University.

She is a teacher at Great Bridge High School in Chesapeake.

Out-of-Towners Win More Votes Than Caton, Kellam in Primary

The official results of the July 11 Democratic primary election, with 22,713 voting here, showed State Sen. William H. Hodges of Chesapeake the most popular vote-getter in greater Virginia Beach. He had support from both the United and Administration camps and received 13,624 votes.

City Treasurer V.A. Etheridge came in second in popularity by picking up 13,510 votes against 8,441 for his Administration opponent, Howard E. Merrill.

In the state senate race, Willard Moody of Portsmouth was second in Virginia Beach with 12,672. E.T. Caton III was third in his home city with 12,438, and State Sen. William P. Kellam finished last and out of the winner's circle here with 11,780.

B.R. Middleton of the Uniteds led in votes for the House of Delegates, getting 11,033. Kenneth N. Whitehurst Jr. of the Administration was second with 10,966 to win with Middleton. Joseph A. Gawrys received 10,535 and L. Charles Burlage got 9,404.

Court Clerk John Fentress beat Richard Absalom by 11,434 to 10,446 for court clerk; Ivan D. Mapp downed independent William H. Phillips by 12,381 to 9,148; Andre Evans of the Uniteds won over Owen Pickett by 11,264 to 9,963; and independent John Marr picked up 10,865 votes in beating Paul Sutton (9,013) and R.L. Harrington (1,080).

'Hilarious' Comedy Plays at Wedgewood

The built-in comedy of "THE LITTLE HUT" is made far funnier by the antics of the players in the current offering of Wedgewood Dinner Theatre in Toano. The highly improbable and totally hilarious British comedy is a complete success at Wedgewood.

The plot revolves around a very proper British gentleman, his not so proper British wife, and her worry-wart of a very debonaire British lover, all shipwrecked on a desert island, the only survivors of a sunken luxury cruise ship.

The problem is that the lower and the wife cannot see each other alone on the island as they could in England. In fact the gentleman and his wife live in the big hut and the lover lives alone in the little hut, where he is miserable. His decision to tell the husband all and propose that they share the totally agreeable wife while they are shipwrecked starts the comical chain of events.

The plot even helps set the improbable mood. A grass mat with the word "welcome" lies at the door of the big hut. A silver tea service appears at one time. There is an old-fashioned gramophone that never seems to need winding, and one of the men even shaves with an electric razor he plugs into a tree. And the wildly painted wild jungle flowers are great.

Director Paul Iddins adds many nice touches and has come

Colleges Are Growing

At least two colleges in the Tidewater, Virginia, area recently took actions concerning new buildings on their campuses.

Officials of Old Dominion College in Norfolk announced a new chemistry building with laboratories will be named after John S. Alfriend.

The College of William & Mary in Williamsburg announced a construction start on its 10th "new campus" building in seven years—an $800,000 mathematics and general classroom building. It also will house the college's Regional Computer Center, now in temporary quarters.

Old Dominion was scheduled to dedicate its new chemistry building this Thursday, July 20, with Gov. Mills Godwin Jr. as the main speaker at a luncheon in the Lewis Webb College Center.

Mishaps Can Be Prevented By Following Safety Tips

Your life or death at times can depend on whether you accept safety advice while fishing, camping or participating in some other sport or leisure-time activity.

The American Red Cross and other agencies at times offer "safety tips" for adults and youngsters.

Here are some of them for fishing:

Check the weather forecast before you go to know how to dress.

Take along a needle-nose pliers, wire cutters and a pocket knife.

Leave word with someone where you plan to fish and when you expect to return.

Move cautiously when wading to avoid step-offs into deep water or stumbling over rocks.

Remain seated while casting from a boat.

Here are some for camping:

Make sure your car is in good condition--brakes, lights, signal devices, windshield wipers, exhaust systems, steering mechanism and tires in particular.

Keep a complete first-aid kit and flares in the car and know how to use them.

Have seat belts for all passengers and use them when traveling.

Take a break from the road every two hours if you are doing all of the driving, and drive defensively.

Select a campsite away from steep embankments and cliffs if you have small children.

Do not put tents or campers near old trees which a storm might topple.

Caution your children against eating unidentified berries and mushrooms or toadstools.

Study poses transit questions

A long-range study proposed to determine a future mass transportation system for greater Virginia Beach and neighboring cities poses a lot of questions.

The study proposal, which local government officials sent to the Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission (SEVRPC) last week, was scheduled for consideration this week by the regional planning group.

During the July 11 Democratic primary campaign, State Sen. William P. Kelam had publicly proposed studying the feasibility of a rapid-transit system by rail across greater Virginia Beach's suburbs. Developments later shifted the proposal to a regional-study basis.

Richard J. Webbon, coordinator of urban affairs for the Virginia Beach city government, presented the study outline to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, Norfolk City Manager Thomas F. Maxwell and Portsmouth City Manager Aubrey Johnson at a closed-door luncheon last Thursday at the Holiday Inn Motel on Military Highway here.

Virginia Beach's representatives on the SEVRPC are J. Roy Alphin, F. Mason Gamage and Lloyd Burton.

Also attending was Neal Windley, assistant to City Manager Louis Z. Johnston of Chesapeake.

After the meeting, Webbon issued a prepared statement.

It said the city managers agreed to submit Webbon's report on the transportation study to SEVRPC "for approval and authority to submit the plan" to the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), for an estimate on costs.

The proposal then would be submitted to the City Councils of the cities involved to be "reconsidered," the statement said.

Hatchett was host for the meeting last week Thursday, and he and others indicated federal aid is necessary for financing the study.

Webbon, who earlier had submitted a preliminary report to Virginia Beach City Council, said in his new report:

"It is noted that some of the technical planning information which is required by the study has already been assembled under various planning grants..."

He said the Research and Development office of the U. S. Department of Transportation indicated a conference of persons representing the cities involved should determine what items to study.

Whether there was agreement on them at the city managers' meeting was not disclosed after it ended.

Webbon, however, had suggested these in his report, which in effect are questions the study would answer.

1. What is the area to be served, its population density and projected development up to 1975?

2. What is the origin and destination of travel by residents in the area with respect to domicile, place of employment, recreation, education and shopping, and transportation presently utilized?

Vandals Are Danger to Public Health

Recent attacks on public water and sewage facilities by vandals are more of a health than a monetary problem, according to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

"It may take weeks to make repairs," Hatchett said after City Council meeting Monday.

"Water and sewer facilities out of service can be a health problem. It's senseless," Hatchett was commenting on two letters he had received from A. W. Petty, acting director of the Department of Public Utilities reporting recent damage by vandals to the Point of Wood sewage treatment plant. An additional operator has been put on in the late afternoon and evening to protect the facility, Petty said.

Damage reported included case blowers cut off, locks broken on valves, sludge dumped from one compartment to another, and chlorine solution diverted, according to Petty. Other places where Petty reported damage included Lakeville Estates lagoon, Kempeville lagoon, Cardinal Estates lagoon, pumping stations on Atlantic Avenue at 48 1/2 Street, on Pacific Avenue at 14th Street, and on Artie Avenue at 29th Street.

Hatchett favors single assessor for land taxes

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett has indicated he favors a "fulltime assessor" to keep the city's real estate tax assessments on a more current basis.

City Council on Monday authorized Hatchett to arrange for either the state or someone in the city to reassess land and improvements for the first time in roughly four years. He said state law requires the city to reassess every four years.

After the meeting, the city manager told a VIRGINIA BEACH SUN reporter that a fulltime assessor has not been hired up to now because "it's just one of those things." Assessing has been done periodically by the Revenue Commissioner's office and a Board of Assessors, he said.

"That isn't the proper way to do it," said Hatchett. "We need a fulltime assessor."

Hatchett said he would contact the state first, but that state assessors are "pretty much in demand right now."

The State Department of Taxation reassessed all property in what is now Virginia Beach from 1960 into 1962. The new assessed values were used for the first time for tax purposes in 1964.

A reassessment, when used for tax purposes, can increase, decrease or leave unchanged the real estate taxes on individual properties. The main goal is an equalization, or updating of assessed values.

In other action on Monday City Council:

*Elected Robert Cromwell Jr. vice mayor to replace Paul Brown who recently died. Councilman Lawrence Marshall, who was out of town, sent a letter saying that "additional responsibilities" of his job required that he decline nomination.

*Gave City Manager Hatchett the authority to purchase suitable land for a proposed mental hygiene clinic. The land under consideration is at the corner of Wolfson Road and Regency Road, but has not been appraised.

Sears at Pembroke has good first year

The year-old Sears Roebuck and Co. store at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center in greater Virginia Beach has done "better than we planned" for the first year, according to J.J. Gara.

Gara, Tidewater district manager for Sears, said projections through July indicate business at the Pembroke store on Virginia Beach Boulevard will be "about 2 per cent" above expected sales.

"We actually had an operating profit, although a small one," he added.

The number of employees at the store, managed by Adam Orgera, has been about 460 since shortly after the opening a year ago today.

While discussing the store's operations since it opened, Gara said Sears has found "wonderful part-time help" in Virginia Beach, many of them young wives.

The turnover of department managers has been low, and sales have particularly been surprising in boys clothing, the beauty department and clothing styles in general, he said.

He said the automotive repair operation behind the main building is handling about 500 cars a month for state inspections.

He said the relatively young

Even sea turtles are finding Virginia Beach's oceanfront sands a tempting nesting place.

Police Sgt. N.C. Morse of the 2nd Precinct said he and some of his fellow officers watched a sea turtle bury "about 30 eggs" in the sand at 40th Street and the oceanfront here last week.

"She weighed about 160 to 170 pounds," Morse said. "She came up on the beach, dug a hole 18 to 20 inches deep and about five inches in diameter, laid the eggs, then covered them up and left."

age of the population in Virginia Beach has been a major factor in the store's success. Much of the business is in the afternoon and evenings.

The present store was built for growth over a five-year period. It was designed to allow later expansion by adding a second floor.

"It was a very wonderful year," Gara said in summing up Sears' first 12 months in greater Virginia Beach.

Seashore To Get Center

The approval this week of a master plan for turning Seashore State Park here into more of a natural wonderland for daytime visitors could lead to a visitor center, three observation towers and an "electric view train."

The State Board of Conservation and Economic Development cleared the master plan on Tuesday.

Ben H. Bolen, commissioner of the Parks Division, said financing of the improvements will be up to coming state legislatures, the first meeting in early 1968.

He said the improvements are planned over a four-year period, and construction of one observation tower and engineering are contemplated in the state biennium starting July 1, 1968.

Stanley W. Abbott and Associates, consultants at Williamsburg, began working on the master plan more than a year ago and presented it to state park officials in mid-June.

Here are the main improvements planned for the 2,770-acre park, which already has camping areas, nature trails and cabins off Shore Drive.

"A visitor center on the park's Great Dune, with a museum showing exhibits of the natural and historical aspects of the park, an observation tower, a snack terrace, restrooms, parking for 100 cars and buses and an assembly room for audio-visual programs.

Rose Bowl Veteran Commands Ft. Story

Two years ago, Col. Thomas D. Emery had a tough assignment—take a battalion of men and open the port of Qui Nhon in Vietnam to give America's fighting men a better supply route for action in the north.

After completing that assignment and later serving as deputy commanding officer of the 4th Transportation Command in Saigon, Emery returned to the United States in 1966. In March of this year, he became commanding officer at Ft. Story, an Army transportation center at Cape Henry in greater Virginia Beach.

The 43-year-old native of Salt Lake City, Utah, played guard on the UCLA Bruins when that California football team played its first Rose Bowl game in January of 1942. He entered the Army in December of the same year and earned his officer bars at Camp Davis, N.C., in August of 1943. Although a Bruin football player, he received his bachelor's degree in education from the University of Omaha.

His assignments during World War II included a tour as a company commander in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater, and he helped establish the first prisoner of war camp in Manila.

Emery also has served with the artillery in Germany, with a Nike defense battalion in Berkeley, Calif., the Military Advisory Group in Korea, and with a Navy unit in water operations at Oakland, Calif.

He was the initial plans officer with the Military Traffic Management Agency in Washington, D. C., and he has been at Ft. Eustis, Va., twice—once to prepare his battalion for opening Qui Nhon, and the second time to serve as secretary of the U. S. Army Transportation School before coming to Ft. Story.

He has studied at the U. S. Naval War College at Newport, R. I., and his awards and decorations include the Republic of Vietnam Medal of Honor, The Philippine Independence Ribbon and National Defense Service Medal, among others.

Emery has close ties with Hollywood, Calif., since his wife is the former Natalie Grenache of Hollywood and their niece, Janie, who lived with them until she recently married, was a daughter of the late Jerome Howard—the initial "Curly" of The Three Stooges.

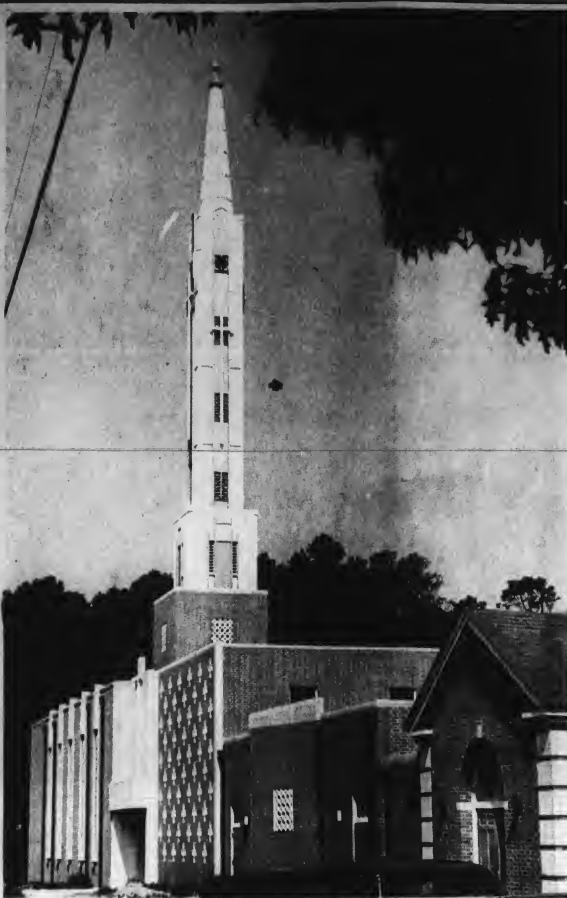

The Emerys live in a three-story brick house on the Chesapeake Bay shoreline at Ft. Story and they have a daughter who will attend Virginia Polytechnic Institute in the fall.

Concert Is Sunday

The show band from Commander Cruiser-Destroyer Flotilla 12 is noted for its pop tunes, and it will perform at 7 p.m. Sunday, July 29, at the Norwegian Lady Statue at 25th Street and the Oceanfront here.

More than 500 persons sat in chairs or on the turf at Red Wing Park off Oceana Boulevard last Sunday to hear international and national selections played by the Cincinatti-NATO band, as the City Recreation Department opened its Summer Concert Series.

The Flotilla 12 band's appearance on the oceanfront is the second of the series of six concerts.

Cox Says Aid Delay Won't Slow Vocational Center

The proposed public Vocational-Technical Educational Center in greater Virginia Beach should open in September 1969, whether or not a federal grant for the project is delayed, according to School Supt. Frank W. Cox.

Cox said that the 1968 Virginia General Assembly will "probably" grant enough funds for the center's construction to begin. The only thing provided locally will be the land for the school, he said. Under the federal Vocational Education Act, the U. S. government is expected to appropriate funds to match those provided by the state.

At the July School Board meeting, Dr. Lawrence Hill, coordinator of area vocational schools for the State Department of Education, reported that federal funds may not be available until the fall of 1968. He said, however, that Congress may amend the amount appropriated through the Vocational Education Act to make funds available sooner.

W. E. Lobeck, project director, and E. E. Brickell, secondary school administrator and overall supervisor of the project, are in the midst of planning for the school. Selection of a site is one of the next steps. Brickell said that several sites remain under consideration.

Shrine Dance Set for Aug. 11

The Virginia Beach Shrine Club's annual summer dance this year is scheduled for Friday, Aug. 11 in the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club. Tickets are now available through club members or from general chairman Bill Rice in the offices of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

Chuck Laskin's orchestra, well-known in the area, will play for dancing.

Construction Supt. Ernest Stone said all public schools now under construction will be ready by Sept. 7 when classes begin. Included are the Holland and Brookwood elementary schools at Princess Anne Plaza.

Stone also said the renovation of Union-Kempsville High School should be finished by fall. "There's no reason why it shouldn't be in first class shape by the time school opens," he said. Kemps Landing School is being renovated this summer too.

J. W. Buffington was re-elected chairman of the School Board for the 1967-68 fiscal year. The fiscal year is from July 1 to the following June 30. George Lyons was re-elected vice chairman, and Miss Frances Brillhart remains as clerk.

City Schools Win Safety Award

The Virginia Beach public school system was one of only about 50 in the United States which received merit awards from Pilot Life Insurance Company for its "outstanding record in the prevention of school-associated accidents to students and teaching personnel during the 1966-67 school year."

The local school system was in competition with hundreds of other systems throughout a major portion of the U.S. and placed high in accident-free days, Adams said.

Pilot Life Insurance Company insures students to and from school and during the day at a small cost to parents.

We and School Costs

With the present state government doing little to help urban areas, the burden is cried for the state to take over at the City Council. It is inevitable the state will continue on matters of public school spending.

There may have been behind the scenes, some talk about whether the state should assume responsibility for all teacher salaries, as the neighboring state of North Carolina does.

And there has been a suggestion by others, privately, that the state take over the full cost of welfare programs (excepting the federal share, of course).

We suspect, municipal financing being the problem it is today in the face of rising taxes mixed with inflation, that several cities like Virginia Beach would favor the state assuming more welfare costs.

On the other hand, all the Washington, D.C., flip-flop around, with suburban cities like Virginia Beach would favor the state handling a greater share of school costs.

However, a good public debate on such possibilities in the near future, after proper research and enlightenment to keep things in perspective, would be refreshing. Perhaps the breezes of debate would be cooling, too.

We look to City Hall for local leadership. And the test of leadership is tackling problems and trying to solve them, not worrying about them.

Virginia Beach's Cromwell

The selection of Robert B. Cromwell Jr. to the position of vice mayor of our city caused a stir in some circles, perhaps because of earlier speculation that Councilman, Lawrence Marshall would be the man.

City Council was wise to wait for a while, in respect to the late Vice Mayor S. Paul Brown's family, before choosing someone for the post he liked so well.

In Vice Mayor Cromwell, his colleagues picked an excellent man who gained public respect while Judge of Juvenile & Domestic Relations Court in late 1965 and early 1966.

The fact that he is the youngest councilman at 34, as well as a Norfolk native and resident of the western part of greater Virginia Beach, reflects the youthfulness of our city.

Councilman Marshall's action in declining to accept nomination as vice mayor for business reasons was not unexpected. He said he has "recent additional responsibility" in his job as a sales supervisor at one of our city's major retail stores.

As a historical side note on the name Cromwell, we hope the vice mayor in his new role inspires love and reverence as some say England's Oliver Cromwell did over three centuries ago.

Those who know the unassuming manner of Virginia Beach's Cromwell are sure he will not inspire the fear and hatred which some say England's did.

We recall one description of England's Cromwell as a man of iron will, true to a high moral purpose. It takes both in city government these days.

About Those Tolls

We dislike having to pay tolls to travel highways, bridges and tunnels. We don't say we hate having to pay tolls because our moments of hate are reserved for those blasted cockroaches and mosquitoes.

Our dislike for tolls goes a long way back, and there is little pleasure in waiting for the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway to open the end of this year when we think of the tolls.

During the last year, some politicians and others have said the toll road will cost people a quarter to drive it. Others have said it will cost 35 cents. Well, both were right it seems... in a sense.

Based on present State Highway Department plans, it also will cost a dime to travel the new four-lane expressway.

As E. H. Orange, state director of toll facilities explained it, passenger-car drivers and bus drivers going the full length of the highway will pay 25 cents. Truck drivers doing the same will pay a quarter, plus 10 cents for each axle over two--35 cents for a three-axle job.

For the average motorist traveling part of the expressway--on either side of mainline toll booths just west of Princess Anne Plaza--the toll will be a dime. For a truck, it will be a nickel per axle.

This will be accomplished, as Orange explained it, by having all but the mainline toll booths on ramps. You will pay either going on or getting off at a given ramp. All patrons will pay only one toll, either at the mainline booths, or at a ramp.

We still dislike tolls. But right now, it would be better than Virginia Beach Boulevard on a weekend when Old Sol in the sky is beckoning thousands to the beaches.

It Pays to Check

Believe it or not, the great majority of men in the car-selling business are above board and believe in making fair sales pitches. They like customers who will stay with them.

Occasionally, however, as the fight for the buyer's dollar gets sticky, the no-down-payment approach gets tricky in advertisements.

Bolen on Master Plan

Ben H. Bolen, commissioner of Virginia parks, when commenting on the master plan unveiled this week for Seashore State Park: "The park will enhance and complement the resort facilities at Virginia Beach by making this wilderness wonderland more attractive both to residents and visitors... They go home and tell their friends what a lush spot it is, and this has a boomerang effect."

Downing on Savannah

Rep. Thomas N. Downing, Virginia Beach congressman, when the federal administration decided last week to use the nuclear ship

Hobbs on Children

We hope many of Queen Susan's 'subjects' will follow in her footsteps and visit Virginia this summer."

Sun Report

Gov. Godwin Meets With Movie NATO

Lt. Mills E. Godwin of Virginia has been moving about the state, pleading for more industry and continued improvement in education, among other things.

To give VIRGINIA BEACH SUN readers an example of what he is saying, this Sun Report has most of the text of his July 20 speech at a recent regional convention of the National Association of Theatre Owners (NATO) at the Cavalier.

"I know that as theater operators you have had your troubles with the changing times, and I can tell you that television is sometimes hard on governors, too.

"It is not too often that my schedule permits me to take advantage of the fact that the Capital City is well endowed with good theaters. But based on the observations I have been able to make, I would say that you are meeting today's challenges in a most effective way.

Retail Sales Tax

"At least there is one problem that other businessmen have had to face recently that did not come as any shock to you people. You have long been accustomed to adding to your ticket charge those pennies for government, and accustomed, too, to hearing the public complain a bit.

"You must have set a good example in the manner in which you handled this particular challenge, for we have had good acceptance of the statewide retail sales tax on the part of the merchants and the public.

"Both are convinced of the rightness of this levy because the majority of our people are anxious to see Virginia move ahead.

"Just how rapidly we will go forward depends on the receipts from our present sources of revenue, including the sales tax, and on the will of our citizens and their elected representatives.

"Virginia did some deep soul searching before we instituted the sales tax. Although we knew that, even with this assessment, the Commonwealth would continue to keep its enviable status as a low-tax State, we wanted to be sure that this measure was necessary as well as good and desirable.

'The Only Way'

"Even a casual look at the needs in education, in highways, in the mental health program and other services was enough to convince us. But further inquiry showed beyond any doubt that the sales tax way was the only way for Virginia, if we were to maintain our standing as one of the most desirable states in the nation in which to live and do business. This most certainly is being proved correct, judging from the comments I hear from top business people within and without our State.

"You and I both have selfish motives for wanting to see that Virginia keeps on growing at a steady pace.

"New and expanding industries and businesses mean more people in the communities across our State, people with the money and the leisure needs that make our operations thrive.

"New and expanding industries mean, for the Commonwealth, more taxable wealth, more economic health.

What Industry Wants

"To keep on attracting the kind of industry we want and need in Virginia--the kind we have been so fortunate in attracting in recent years--we must demonstrate that we can provide both the innate assets on which we pride ourselves, and the more tangible, but equally essential ones which our pride demands we supply.

"Industry wants elbow room. Virginia has it. You can travel any distance in any direction, and see the results in the form of new plants in operation or under construction.

"Industry wants dependable, trainable employees. Virginia has them. They have been leaving our farms in rising numbers for more than twenty years.

"Industry wants plants close to its markets. Virginia is centered on the East Coast, at the door of an urban corridor stretching from the nation's capital to New England.

"Industry wants transportation. Virginia's railroads connect the ports of Hampton Roads with the Midwest, and the Northeast. We have under construction more than a thousand miles of interstate highway and another seventeen hundred miles of our own intra-state Arterial System.

The Changing South

"Industry wants education. Every Southern state has been pouring millions into public schools and colleges. Virginia has just launched a system of 22 community colleges, which will place the first two years of college within commuting distance of every young Virginian of college age.

"Industry wants to be close to an urban center, and Virginia and the South are becoming urbanized. Virginia's six major urban centers now include more than half our population, and will encompass two-thirds of our people by 1980, a development that has implications as significant for your businesses as for any segment of our economy.

"For almost a century, the South was the nation's underdeveloped country; in some ways, deliberately kept that way. It was the nation's economic and social problem area.

"Now the South's economy is as sound as any in the country, and growing faster than most. And the South is showing that she understands and can solve the most difficult social problems.

"As businessmen, you have problems that are peculiarly your own, but I firmly believe you will not find better conditions anywhere in which to meet whatever the future brings."

'Home Away From Home' Needs Permanent Home

Backers of the shifted-around Hospitality House for the military on greater Virginia Beach's oceanfront are meeting this Thursday, July 27, to once more revive support for the "home away from home".

Mrs. Edward B. Snyder and H. Jack Jennings of the city are co-chairmen of a Citizens Committee which is seeking a permanent location for the Hospitality House, located at 27th Street and Atlantic Avenue this summer.

Mrs. Snyder said various city and military officials and persons long active in supporting the facility were to meet this Thursday at Bay Harbor Club on Laskin Road.

The Citizens Committee is helping get volunteer help at the Hospitality House, visited by up to 1,000 service men and women on weekends. The present building, used as a bathhouse and picnic place, will be torn down to make room for a motel after this summer.

The Initial Hospitality House was started years ago in a now-gone church building and has been revived each year by the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association and Navy chaplains.

It has received limited support from the United Communities Fund, and thus far only interest and advice from the USO, City recreation officials have at times helped the Hospitality House. It is open from 2 to 9 p.m. weekdays and Sundays; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Snyder said 30 letters recently sent to various church and other groups in the city, soliciting volunteer services, brought several responses by last weekend. The Virginia Beach Rotary Club, Virginia Beach Shrine Club and First Presbyterian Church of Virginia Beach responded favorably, she said. The Jewish Community Center also offered help.

A Hospitality House Committee created at least a year ago has been keeping the facility alive.

On the main committee are Chaplain Gordon Griffin, a sparkplug behind the center when he was at FAATWC Dam Neck before going aboard the USS Pocahontas; the Rev. Dickson W. Taylor of Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, the Rev. Thomas Britton of Lynnhaven Colony United Church of Christ U. S. A.; and Chaplain Kenneth Blunt of Ft. Story.

Mrs. Snyder said persons invited to this Thursday's meeting included those persons and Mayor Frank A. Dusch, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, Father John J. Foley of Star-of-the-Sea Catholic Church, Mrs. Wallace Clark, Algy Cohen, Maury Riganio and Harold Whitehurst of City Parks and Recreation, and R. Bradshaw Pulley and Albin Malhes of the Chamber of Commerce.

Brinkman Quits Ocean Hiway

The Ocean Hiway Association's executive board has accepted the resignation of Fred P. Brinkman, executive director, who notified the board June 29 that he will leave Aug. 15 to join another organization.

Brinkman has been with the Ocean Hiway group headquartered here, for three years. He said early this week that announcement of his new position would have to be made by his employers. A successor had not been named by the Ocean Hiway board by Tuesday.

New Lawn Service Is Available

"The secret of Lawn-A-Mat's success is automation," according to James E. Spence, who recently was awarded a franchise by the Lawn-A-Mat Chemical and Equipment Corp. of Mineola, N. Y.

His company, Lawn-A-Mat of Kempville, is located at 4558 Little John Drive in Norfolk near the Virginia Beach city limits. He is now fully-staffed and equipped to provide the low-cost labor and time saving lawn care service has become familiar to many homeowners throughout the United States.

"Our claim is that we do all the work and furnish the seed and chemicals at a price that the homeowner would pay if he bought the necessary materials himself."

Spence added, "Most homeowners even when they buy the materials and know when to put them on the lawn, simply do not have the equipment and 'know-how' to do the job properly and, as a result, most of the investment is lost and the homeowner continues the same futile battle year after year." His service covers every lawn job except mowing and watering.

"With our 'Rube Goldberg' like mechanical combine we can do in a half hour what 10 ex-

C & P to Expand Center at Plaza

Improvements planned at the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia's dial center on Plaza Trail in Princess Anne Plaza are scheduled for competition by March of 1968.

L.F. Patrick, manager of the Virginia Beach office of C & P, said the company has authorized spending $170,900 to increase the dial center's capacity by 2,000 numbers to 14,000.

He said men will begin installing the additional central office equipment in November.

One step in the Virginia Beach public school plan to offer pre-school kindergarten for all children by 1968 has been a summer program for the past two summers.

This year about 340 children participated in 17 classes at 15 schools. Among these were the two classes pictured from Kings Grant Elementary.

The classes also visited a dairies' the Norfolk zoo, fire stations, and took part in many group activities.

Pony Pitcher Fans 19 From Norfolk in Tourney

PeeWee Payne fanned 19 Norfolk batters and gave up four scattered hits as he pitched the Lynnhaven Pony All-Stars to a 5 to 3 win in tournament action at Trant Memorial Field.

The victory Sunday evening set the stage for another meeting between the Lynnhaven and Norfolk teams early this week in Norfolk to decide which one goes to Cascade Park in Chesapeake for regional competition Aug. 1.

Slow-Pitch Contest Draws Local Teams

Two slow-pitch softball teams in greater Virginia Beach will shoot for a berth in a national tournament when they play in the Virginia Amateur Softball Association's state-regional tournament in Richmond Aug. 12.

The teams are sponsored by E.C. Womack and Cambric Inn. The Birchard Dairyman Newport News and the Bluejackets and USS Sierra teams of Norfolk also are among 29 teams which have qualified for the Virginia tournament.

Harris Upsets Hoff As Net Juniors Win Titles

The sun in the sky was hot, but 14-year-old Hunt Harris cooled off and whipped defending singles champion Dick Hoff of the Navy 8-6, 4-6 and 6-3 in the second annual City Tennis Tournament on the Princess Anne High courts in greater Virginia Beach.

Harris' win in the semi-finals last Sunday set up a final match against John Deckwitz, an Australian-born netman, at Princess Anne this coming Saturday, July 29. Deckwitz beat attorney Robert Furniss in the semi-finals 6-1, 4-6 and 6-1.

The doubles finals for men in the citywide tournament also will be Saturday. Hoff and Deckwitz teamed up to gain a berth in the finals, but the other final pair was not set by VIRGINIA BEACH SUN presstime.

Two youngsters also gained laurels in the women's division of the city tournament. Miss Talbot Jordan, 17, won the singles title by downing Miss Pam Furniss, 15, with a 6-0 and 6-1 romp. Then Miss Jordan teamed with Linda Koch, 15, to take on veterans Lib Langle and Betty Leitch in the doubles finals Sunday. The youngsters won 6-3 and 9-7.

Harris said he plans to play in the Princess Anne Country Club Junior Invitational July 31 to Aug. 3. Invitations have been sent to 120 players in Virginia, Maryland, the Washington, D.C., area, and Ottawa, Canada.

Harvey Shank is a nice man but...

He can't count. Harvey Shank told one customer it would take a week to install flameless electric heat in her house. It only took him four days.

Harvey Shank is a cracker-jack Comfort Conditioning Contractor—and he counted on a week as the most time it would take to do the job. After all, how long could it take to install some cables, a few baseboard units and a thermostat in every room? That's all it takes to convert a house to electric baseboard heat. Sound simple enough to you? Why don't you give your VEPCO-authorized Comfort Conditioning Contractor a call?

If he miscounts like Harvey Shank, it's sure to be in your favor.

A Woman's Story

'In Prison, Everyone Is Your Friend'

Virginia Beach resident Mary Sigillo tells today of arrest and imprisonment for her activities as a member of the underground movement which flourished throughout Europe during World War II.

She and her fiancé, Arthur Libre, were arrested in the home of Libre's grandfather as they were attempting to escape to Portugal and to England. They'd been active for almost two years, knew that their luck was fast running out. A German on guard duty as a railroad station in France had been shot. Arthur Libre was among the handful of saboteurs attempting to derail a train when the killing occurred.

Following is the third installment of A Woman's Story.

This drawing of Churchill and Roosevelt was done by Mary's fiancé Arthur Libre during his hours and days in prison. All of his personal things were delivered to Mary after the war by a Catholic priest who was with him.

Copyright 1967 Jeanne Magee Tucker

Now Arthur's whole family was patriotic. His grandfather was not really involved with the Resistance, but he was a person who would help us and he had. But no one knew we were underground workers, so he said, What are they coming for? I said, Papa, they're coming most likely for us, and I'm sorry.

By then, it was bang, bang, bang all over the place.

I rushed upstairs to Arthur ... his grandfather went to the door.

As I was coming back down the stairs, a German officer stood towards me, pointing his gun in my direction. In plain English he asked, Where is Arthur Libre?

Acting surprised, I said I never heard of him.

What is your name, asked the German. I replied, Germaine Lefevre. Out of his pocket he took an envelope; he showed me a picture of Arthur and myself. So, he said, your name is Germaine? What became of Mary Sigillo? Before I could answer I was hit in the face by one of the soldiers. I bit on my lip. What could I do against 24 soldiers?

Meanwhile, Arthur had gone to the roof of the house but there was no way to escape for the whole house was encircled by Germans with machine guns. He was obligated to give himself up.

With the gun still pointing at my chest the German officer said, Well, Mary, you might as well know you and your fiancé are wanted by the Gestapo in Belgium. I asked him why. You soon find out was his reply ... and I did, I knew that it was the beginning of the end.

Arthur was brought down the stairs and was slapped a few times across the face. Grandfather was thrown on the floor, where he stayed, lying face down. Without any time to get any of our clothes, we had to go. I asked if I could take a jacket and he let me go to the closet. I had intended taking Arthur's gun which was hidden in the closet, but the German, no doubt sensing my intentions, stood behind me watching every move I was making.

Soon we were in the Gestapo's car, driving away from people who were standing and watching, saying nothing, but the expression on their faces was COURAGE.

We got to the city hall of Dourges and there was a French Commissaire. At our sight he said, Oh, ja, I know them. I have seen these two around. If I knew they were wanted, I would have saved you all that trouble. (He didn't last long after that for we found out later he was a traitor.)

After about two hours there, the officer in charge came in and went over to Arthur and said, Well, fellow, take a good look around, for this is the last time you will ever see this country again. Where is your gun?

I will never tell you, said

Arthur. Kill me first.

The German brought out from behind his back the gun and smiled. This is what killed one of our soldiers and now you will know what it is to get shot not by one gun but by 12. Arthur asked him to get it over with.

Nein, nein, said the officer, that would be too easy.

My only idea was to see if there was a way to escape but no. No use of trying. It would just make it harder for our families.

After a while, I heard a soldier saying the girl will be separated from him so nothing can be exchanged.

We were then put in separate cars; Arthur in his car went first, we followed.

Soon, we stopped in front of a big building and were ordered to get out. I saw Arthur. I whispered to him that the Ger-

The '67 Contest

The Happening spot at 3rd and Oceanfront this year might well be the site of the largest surfing contest ever staged on the East Coast.

The contest sponsors, the Virginia Beach Jaycees, have announced that the Fifth Annual East Coast Surfing Championships, scheduled Aug. 26 and 27, already shows promise of topping last year's record-breaking 400 entries.

Among the great names in surfing who'll be on hand for this year's event are Hobie Alter, Joyce Hoffman (the world's number one woman surfer), Corky Carroll (number one male surfer of the world), Dan Hansen, Dewey Weber, Rusty Miller, Hoppy Swartz, (ranked the number one surfing judge in the world), and Brennan "Hevs" McClelland, a 250-pounder, well-known for his showmanship and humor, who is the scheduled announcer. "Hevs" has announced most major contests on the West Coast.

It has been announced also that surfing activities this year will not cease with the sun. The Jaycees have planned to show an outstanding surfing movie at the Civic Center, Friday night, Aug. 28. They also will show slides and movies of previous East Coast surfing championships.

In the wind too is the possibility of a street dance Saturday night.

Mike Chalbeck, 18, wears the new '67 shirt.

About the Designer

The man behind the symbol, Grant Parrish of the Virginia Beach Jaycees, this year chose a white background shirt, and artistically lettered it in red. Parrish's imagination in depicting the art of surfing generally is inspired, he said, by the roundness of the sun or the crest of a wave.

Though his design appears on car decals also, most of its exposure is on the backs of surfers and on clotheslines.

Parrish, now with a New York advertising firm, has designed the shirts for the past three years, donating his time and talent.

Those Surfing Shirts

'67 Shirts Go on Sale

A surfer without a shirt is like a surfer without a board ... and right now a surfer without THE shirt is a surfer without status.

THE shirt is the New Now status symbol among surfers, the shirt emblazoned with the colorful '67 East Coast Surfing Championship symbol.

As with most status symbols, the '67 surfing shirt will, no doubt, soon become a collector's item.

The first two shirts, those for '63 and '64, are now unavailable; the '65 and '66 shirts had to be made up specially for these Sun photos.

Hot off the assembly line, the '67 shirt is now on sale at those Beach shops who are cooperating with Jaycees, sponsors of the annual surfing competition here, in their efforts to promote the surfing contest as an exciting sports event as well as a profitable community fund-raiser.

Last year's proceeds (over 1,500 shirts were sold), added to the $5. surfing contest entry fee, provided the Jaycees with money to erect a sign in front of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The sign cost well over $1,000.

This year, and in the future, all the profits realized from the sale of the shirts (shopowners receive no percentage of the sales) will go into a scholarship fund for deserving students. The Jaycees' thinking on it is that since most of the money comes from the youth, it should be returned to the youth.

Mark Freeborn, 13, in the '65 shirt.

Pat Turner, 16, wearing the '66 shirt.

Trophy Honors Seamans

The surfing trophies, like the shirts, have, this year, also caused considerable community interest.

A newly-created one is in memory of Otto Seamans, well known area surfer who earlier this year was killed in action in Vietnam. Known as the Otto Seamans Memorial Trophy, it will be presented this year for the first time to the outstanding Virginia Beach surfer. This will be a perpetual trophy bearing Seamans' name.

New also is the trophy design for this year's contest. They are carved wooden Tiki heads; the first place trophy stands well over three feet tall.

She's 55 And Just Beginning

By Jeanne Magee Tucker
Women's Editor

At 55, Ana Pasqualino took a long, hard look at herself, analyzed her chances in the labor market and decided to capitalize on what she knows best: being a woman.

Today, one year after she broke with tradition and invaded the world of the gray-haired careerist, Mrs. Pasqualino officiates over a salon with a salon, proving that the over-45 working woman can not only put cash in the family cookie jar, she can, at the same time rescue herself from middle-aged despair.

In addition, Ana feels, this woman offers an employer dignity and experience often lacking on those half her age.

In Mrs. Pasqualino's case, she offers much to her clients as well. She offers them "An Afternoon with Ana," a one-hour to three-hour session that might include a facial, a pedicure, a hair style, a manicure.

And along with it, and at no extra cost, the client gets a generous sprinkling of Ana's philosophy, experiences, worldliness.

The energetic and enterprising Jill of all beauty trades could well have chosen to devote her time to writing a book rather than to learning the techniques of making women beautiful.

Cuban by birth, her family had the means of providing her with the finer things in life. In Cuban circles, this included little education except that needed to fill in the years between childhood and marriage. While it covered the usual finishing school subjects, it in no way equipped the student to cope with the world outside the family villa's walls.

However, she married an American Naval officer whose education was enough for the two of them, so her life took on a continental-type of existence: homes here and abroad with several 'round-the-world trips to add more color still.

The time soon came, though, when Ana's husband retired. They settled down to a more permanent way of living, and Ana began to fidget.

She'd reached her early fifties, had seen all the sights there were to see, and she and her husband were no longer caught up in the hectic, social whirl of the active duty military.

A job seemed the logical involvement, but making the move from hostess to careerist required much thought and evaluation. She was unskilled, but certainly more knowledgeable on beauty than on bookkeeping. (See 31st and Pacific Page 9) squeaky doors? After a secret signal, the door opened and we walked through three more doors. At last we saw the hallway of a prison. What a feeling!

They took me to my cell and at the door I turned around to see Arthur. He ran towards me and before the soldiers could do anything, I was in his arms and we kissed. Was this the last kiss I wondered?

Allee, Allee, said the Germans. I took a last look at Arthur and was ordered to enter my cell. The door slammed behind me. I pushed my ear to the door to hear if Arthur was going to be close by but the only thing I could hear was the sound of heavy boots fading away. It was midnight about noon. A beautiful Friday.

I wasn't in my cell 10 minutes before I could hear someone saying, 190 answer. Come towards the window. Until then

I hadn't even noticed a window. The window was in the corner of a wing of the prison. I took a mirror, and with the mirror pointing towards the window, I could see there were girls... They were prisoners: French, English and Algerians.

Seeing them I felt a little more comfortable. Soon I found out their names.

I could hear boots approaching and I waited. My door opened and there was a German saying, kommen sie hier (come here). He pushed me out of the door and I had to walk with my hands above my head.

I was brought in front of an interrogator. He asked me several questions, all about Arthur and our families. I lied with confidence. Arthur and I had made a promise that we would never talk... just keep on saying that we were together all the time and that I had been paid by the Germans and also fed by them. That is the story we were going to stick to.

At the end of my story, the Germans showed me a rubber stick and said, You see this? Well, your friend got kind of fresh and so we had to calm him down. He is still down; take a look.

Sure enough, when I turned around there was Arthur lying on the floor. The soldiers had ripped off his shirt.

I looked at the German and said, We were told you treated prisoners like this but we couldn't believe it. Now we have found you haven't changed since the first world war.

Before I realized it, he had hit me in the face. The soldier said, You make me have pity on you but I am obligated to hit you. The slaps kept flying. Other soldiers were looking on, smiling. I looked in Arthur's direction and he wasn't moving. I thought they had killed him but found out later that he was unconscious the whole time.

I was taken back to my cell. All I wanted was to lie down but I couldn't. The only thing there was in the cell was a table that was made into a bed at 8 p.m., one hard chair, a basin and a water pail. I felt very lonesome and wanted to think but the door opened again and there was the same soldier.

Follow me, he said. I thought,

The Lotus Queen

A kiss for a queen: William P. Kellam, master of ceremonies for the Lotus Festival coronation, bestows a victory kiss on the 13th annual Lotus Queen, Miss Linda Dixon.

The Knott's Island Volunteer Firemen this year picked a winner.

They selected Miss Linda Dixon, First Colonial High School student, to carry the Knott's Island Volunteer Fire Department banner to victory in the 13th annual Lotus Festival, thereby winning for them one-half the total sum she collected for the Cape Henry Women's Club.

The annual Lotus festival, a week-long series of events sponsored by the clubwomen was kicked off royally with the queen's coronation last Thursday night in the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club.

Linda won out over 18 other contestants. The queen is chosen on the basis of funds collected during the several weeks that precede the coronation.

Trailing Linda and winning second place spot was Miss Terri Napolitano, Norfolk Catholic High School student sponsored by Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

A stroll with a queen: Mayor Frank A. Dusch promenades with the beaming queen.

...and a '67 contestant waits (Miss Loy Clement of Bayside).

DAV Auxiliary Organized

When the assemblage of Disabled American Veterans and their auxiliaries met to install new officers Saturday night in Norfolk, something new was added. It was a charter and an installation ceremony for the newly-formed auxiliary here at the Beach.

Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary Chapter #20 stood up and was counted for the first time among its sister auxiliaries. The new chapter numbers 14 members with high hopes for more soon to be added.

New officers and committee members are: Commander, Ruth S. Holt; vice presidents, Mrs. Dorothy J. Allen and Winifred Ackles; chaplain, Mrs. Lela Ellison; and treasurer, Mrs. Virginia Salmon.

Looking over their charter are Mrs. Peggy Fluty, adjutant; Mrs. Virginia Salmon, treasurer; and Mrs. Ruth S. Holt, commander of the newly-organized Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary Chapter #20.

Frances Darman, senior vice commander of the State Department Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, installed the new officers.

She moved easily. Her years of being pampered in salons throughout the world made her an ideal student... an excellent operator. Today, in Manuel of Cuba's Salon on Laskin Road, she hovers over her clients like a mother hen, urging them, in her heavily-accented voice, to relax... as she smooths away wrinkles, soothes tired feet, repairs damaged nails.

She darkens the room for a professional facial massage; she puts and perfumes the feet with the finest fragrances, the softest towels; she tilts the chair to the most effective position for the utmost stimulation and circulation.

A client might even get a bit of her spine-tingling cloak and dagger life story.

Her Cuban ties bound her until Castro slashed them. The story of her fairly recent involvements in her native land's upheavals rival the most sensational magazines in the salon library.

But to Ana, the real story is what entering the labor market can mean to those women to whom the word work is foreign.

"I was 55 and never worked a day in my life. Now I have no time to worry. And I'm having a marvelous time. I'm meeting people... I'm busy. I'm past 55 and am experiencing a whole new life."

But make no mistake; Ana's husband still reigns.

"If he says get out of that shop by 3 to go somewhere with him, believe me I get out."

Theatre Needs New Faces

Tidewater civilians and the military have been providing area theaters with talents unequalled in any other part of the country. Currently there is a great demand for those talents in Dinner Theaters and Little Theaters in greater Virginia Beach, Norfolk, and Portsmouth.

Now the Peninsula Community Theatre also is calling for that available talent. That group will, on Sept. 27-30, present the long-running Broadway hit "Funny Girl".

Duckworth Gets Appointment

William H. Duckworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Duckworth of Cardinal Road, will attend the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., as a Plebe in the fall. Duckworth, who is a 1965 graduate of Virginia Beach High School, received his appointment from Congressman Thomas N. Downing.

Try outs for the 55 roles will be on Aug. 6 at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m., and Aug. 7 and 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Peninsula Community Theatre rehearsal hall (air-conditioned) on Marshall Avenue, just below 79th Street, in Newport News.
